LOCAL MAN SHOT TO DEATH WHILE ASLEEP AT HOME

Police Hunting For Assassin Of Local Man

Frank Politano Of Pennsylvania Avenue Shot Dead While Asleep

ASSASSIN MAKES ESCAPE FROM SCENE

Widow And Five Children Left By Murdered Man—Possible Motive Seen

District Attorney J. Elder Bryan at noon today ordered Sheriff's Deputy William Reynolds to take Mrs. Frank Polatina into custody this afternoon. According to the district attorney's office she is willing to be detained for questioning.

Frank Politano, 40, of 2021 Pennsylvania avenue, was the victim of an assassin late last night, being shot to death as he slept on a lounge in a dining room. Five bullets entered his head. The murder caused a widow and five fatherless children, the eldest being 10 years old. The murderer escaped.

Shoe prints in the snow showed the assassin stealthily made his way to a window where he could peer beneath a curtain into the illuminated room to see his victim asleep. He entered a rear door which was unlocked, passed through the kitchen, crept noiselessly to the lounge and while Politano was asleep pulled the trigger of a revolver believed to have been an automatic. His face was burned by the powder.

Mrs. Politano told officials she and her children retired at seven o'clock. When one of her offspring wanted a pillow she sent him to get it from her husband. Politano was asleep, the child said. She arose and got the pillow. He was asleep when she returned to her room. Mrs. Politano was awakened by the reports from the revolver, heard a person run across the floor and the door slam as he fled.

In Trouble at Martins Ferry

During the investigation it was learned that three years ago Politano had a fight with two men in Martins Ferry. As a result of the battle Politano and one of the men were arrested and fined. The third man left Martins Ferry.

She said her husband blew up a house in Martins Ferry and fled to New Castle. He notified her to come here. Evidence that Politano

LADY MAXWELL

Before she became Lady Maxwell—wife of Lord Maxwell—Miss Nora Delaney of London and Dublin was one of the most noted beauties of the British Isles. As matron she retains her rank. She has not succumbed to the bob and frowns upon smoking. A keen student of politics and an active party worker, she still has time for receptions at which one meets leaders of art and literature. Her home is a veritable museum of art treasures. This is Lady Maxwell's latest portrait.

Workmen were busy today trimming and lighting the big Christmas tree, and it will present a wonderful spectacle when the myriad of lights is burning.

Dill Measure First Barrier To Vare-Smith

Senator Dill Proposes Resolution For Disqualification Of Senate Pair

DEMOCRATS SHY TOWARD ACTION

New Investigations In Electoral Contests Proposed At This Time

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—A bewildering array of proposed senatorial contests, disbarment proceedings and election investigations faced the senate today with the Democrats striving to elevate their corruption issue into national prominence for the 1928 presidential campaign.

Feared by Democrats.

Out of the maze, the senate was concerned chiefly with the Dill resolutions calling for the immediate disqualification of Senator-elect William S. Vare of Pennsylvania and Frank L. Smith of Illinois. This move overshadowed all others because of its importance as a precedent in election contests. For this reason, too, it met with little favor among southern Democrats, who fear it might at some future date be used by an overwhelming Republican senate to bar them from their seats.

If the resolutions ever are adopted "closing the doors of the senate in the faces of Smith and Vare"—as Senator Dill (D) of Washington demanded—neither ever would become a member of the senate. If barred from the privileges of a senator-elect by the present senate, it was generally conceded, the next senate undoubtedly would take the same action, thus keeping both men from ever entering the senate. Republican leaders, meanwhile, planned to sidetrack the resolutions by referring them to the senate judiciary committee for consideration.

New Investigation.

The question of launching new electoral investigations was next in importance, as it involves the senatorial elections in Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Maine along with the earlier Ohio primary. At a second session this morning, the Reed committee discussed this question as well as a plan to draft an immediate report on the earlier

Jury Completed In Case Against Pat McDermott

Ten Men And Two Women Occupy Jury Positions In Canton Murder Trial

By PAUL BROKAW
International News Service Staff Correspondent

COURTHOUSE, CANTON, O., Dec. 10.—The jury to try Pat E. McDermott for murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, was completed in Judge E. W. Fiehl's common pleas court here this afternoon. It included 10 men and two women.

The 12 regular jurors were selected only after both sides had exhausted all the peremptory challenges permitted by the statutes, and a third special venire had been called into service. A thirteenth alternate juror remained to be chosen before the taking of testimony could be started.

The selection of the last juror came shortly after the court had denied a motion by the defense attorneys for a three-day continuance to study the personnel of the third special venire. A similar motion was denied earlier in the week when the second special panel was called.

To Reopen Probe In Pennsylvania Primary Election

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The political pot on Capitol Hill boiled over today when the Reed committee decided to re-open its inquiries into the senatorial primaries in Pennsylvania, Illinois, Oregon and Arizona.

This action was taken in order to hear witnesses missed at the earlier sessions of the committee. The hearings will be confined to the senatorial primaries in each of these states.

The committee did not reach a decision on the requests for investigations of the primaries in Massachusetts and Ohio, or the elections in Maine and Pennsylvania. It will meet again Monday.

ESTIMATE THRONG ON STREETS TO SEE PAGEANT AT 50,000

Streets Are Densely Packed For Tour of Santa Claus and His Reindeers--Eskimos Are Feature—Floats to Please Army of Children—Many Bands—Boy Scouts Out In Force—Event One Long To Be Remembered.

Youth was king today, and in honor of the reigning monarch, Santa Claus, patron saint of childhood, with his royal court of Brownies, Eskimos, Reindeer and the fanciful figures that imagery has conceived, paraded before a crowd that has been estimated at 35,000, but must certainly have closer approximated 50,000.

It is doubtful if at any one time before in the history of New Castle have so many people been on the downtown streets. Certainly no circus ever drew such a throng, the Centennial parades did not draw such a throng, and perhaps nothing else in the world but an attraction such as Santa Claus could bring so many people from their homes to watch a parade.

From the Y. M. C. A. on the Public Square to Pearson street the great throng was massed, not in groups here and there, but an unbroken dense throng of people, packed from shop window to the middle of the street. Not alone that, but every conceivable vantage point was utilized.

Store windows were full of people, stairways and second and third story windows were filled. Just an unbroken lane of thousands, downtown ostensibly to give the youngsters a treat, but probably just as much interested in Santa Claus as the most excitable little tad watching it.

Nor were all the people from New Castle. Every train, every interurban trolley and hundreds of automobiles from the outlying districts poured out their cargo of humans in to help swell the throng and if there was one grouch in the entire throng his complaining was swallowed up in the happy laughter of the children.

All Children.

For all of that throng were children again. Years meant nothing and for once in the year stand old men and women took the governor off their emotions and for an hour or so allowed themselves the exequisite privilege of roaming in the fairyland of childhood's realm.

The parade was a wee bit late, not much, perhaps 30 minutes, but who cared? Time and Tide may wait on no man but all of us will wait on Santa Claus. Wait cheerfully and expectantly to see the jolly old Saint who gladdened our lives when we were young and who will continue to gladden the lives of all children as long as love rules the human heart.

At 11:30 the line of march moved out from the public square with a police escort at its head followed by the Boy Scout flag division and then Grand Marshal George W. Muse and his aides. Plenty of canes, a sprinkling of silk hats and altogether a very doggy group of representative citizens.

Then the crack E. and A. division band, resplendent in scarlet uniforms, playing with a zeal inspired by the spirit back of the parade.

Following the band were automobiles bearing city officials, General Chairman Rex Patch and members of committees.

Back of the cars came the Boy Scouts, Brownies and lads in costumes, Santa Claus Work Shop, Thatcher's Band, Santa Claus himself in his sleigh drawn by reindeers.

The Eskimos were on the Top of the World float and other floats were Goldie Locks and The Three Bears, Northland Float, Tuberculosis League float the "Old Woman Who Lived in the Shoe" and plenty of bands. The Croton band was out, the Senior high school band, the junior high school and ones mentioned above.

The parade was a tremendous

You modernists may scoff and jeer and tell me there's no Santa Claus, but I'm convinced that you are wrong, there is such a fellow lives, because, this morning I saw evidences that he has followers, thousands strong, they waited on the streets today, and cheered their leader loud and strong. Don't tell me there's no Santa Claus, I know there is, and this is why, a little laddie told me so, and would I break his faith, not I. If he believes there's such a chap, there is and I believe it too, and way down in your heart of hearts, I'll bet this faith is shared by you. There is a Santa Claus, I know, a spirit, very much alive, and all we kids believed today, we saw him, weather's thirty-five.

She made the identification thru scars and birthmarks on the limbs and head of the body, the torso of which is still missing.

12 DAYS LEFT FOR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

Reindeers Are Given Buckets Of Snow On Arrival Here

Not since the Centennial of 18 months ago has there been so much excitement on the streets of New Castle as there was this morning. Shortly after breakfast, men and woman accompanied by little boys and girls began appearing on the downtown streets and by 10 o'clock it looked like a circus day.

True to his promise, Santa Claus got in with his Eskimo friends and reindeers and while the Eskimos were hidden away in a hotel the reindeer were open to display on the P. and L. E. siding and they attracted plenty of attention.

Wrong Conception.

To begin with most of us have been all wrong in our conception of reindeer. They do not look like a moose or an elk or a caribou, nor even like the deer native to this part of the country.

They resemble somewhat a small cow, except that their horns are the branching horn something like Pennsylvania deer. The head is something like a native deer's head except that it is not so pointed. In color they are brown and white, their hair being close matted and tough. Just below the head there is a large tuft of long hair looking much like a mat on their breasts.

The reindeer brought in for the pageant are the genuine Alaskan reindeer and were brought in from Alaska. Three of them have a horn broken off caused by the shifting around of shipping. Four of them are yearlings while two are old reindeer.

Eat Snow.

When the car was opened one of the men in charge went out and filled up several buckets of snow. This was their morning drink and it was interesting to see them gobble it up. Each one of them eats about a bushel of snow at a time

Eskimo Boy Is Happy; Size Of Reindeers Is Surprise To Spectators

Weather conditions were excellent for the Santa Claus pageant in this city today. Snow fell during the night, and early this morning, but quit before the pageant. Weather conditions moderated somewhat so that it was not cold when the parade started, but there was enough snow to give a fitting setting to the scene.

The little Eskimo chap had a great time in the parade. He was leaning out over the side of the truck upon which the igloo and northland floats were carried and was smiling as though he enjoyed the situation.

It was necessary for the Eskimo to walk along beside the reindeers during the parade, as they are quite strange to crowds, and someone had to be near who knew how to handle the little animals.

The consensus of opinion on the part of the young and old of the crowd was that the reindeers were smaller than they expected they would be. The reindeers are just about the size of a calf.

The old woman in the shoe float took the eye of the youngsters. Fifteen or 20 lads and lassies in costumes got to ride in the float, and they were pleased beyond measure.

Never before has anything like the number of people been seen on the streets here. Most everybody on the streets was remarking on the amazing crowd that had assembled to greet Santa.

Be downtown tonight for the program at the community tree.

The lights on the community tree were burning when the parade started, workmen being engaged in the task of decorating the tree at the time.

New Castle school children came downtown and uptown enmasse today. It is safe to hazard a guess that hardly a pupil in the schools missed seeing Santa Claus today. If they couldn't come alone they brought their parents with them.

Yes, there is a Santa Claus!

Lost Children Are Reported To Police Officers

Immense Crowd In City Results In Numerous Reports Of Lost Children

Santa Claus on his visit here today was greeted by practically every boy and girl in the city and Lawrence County. The crowd of old and young on the streets, according to the police, the weather conditions considered, was probably the record of any previous occasion on which the people were attracted to the downtown section of the city.

The eargerness of the children, also probably of the parents, resulted in an unusually large number of children being reported as lost to the police. There were five reported and it is probable that the number that was actually lost for a time was many more than that.

Four of the children reported to the police were really found, that is they were reported as being at various points where they were taken charge of until some person inquired for them.

Two girls were reported at 640 East Washington street, a lost boy at the Economy Shoe store and a lost girl at the New Castle Dry Goods company store. Then there was an inquiry at the station for a girl from Rose Point, who had become separated from her pals.

The police handled the vast throng of excited youngsters and it might be said enthusiastic older people in good shape until the parade passed by and then there was nothing to it, the crowd just simply swept the police to one side and filled the street.

Supreme Court Denies Re-Hearing In Will Decision

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 10.—The supreme court today denied a rehearing in the McClintock will case.

The high court at the October session had decided the will of "Billy" McClintock which named William B. Shepherd of Chicago as chief beneficiary, should be admitted to probate. The supreme court did not pass upon the validity of the will itself, and any further action to contest its validity will now have to be taken in the Cook county courts.

Shepherd stood trial in Chicago for McClintock's "germ" murder but was acquitted.

Over 27,000 Men Get Wage Raise

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 10.—In response to inquiries, officers of the Pennsylvania Railroad at the company's headquarters in Philadelphia, Pa., stated that the wage increase decision announced yesterday by the first board of arbitration to function under the new Watson-Parker law enacted at the last session of congress, affects approximately 27,000 Pennsylvania employes. The board awarded an increase in wages of approximately 7½% to conductors, trainmen and switchmen.

It was estimated that the award increases the wages of the Pennsylvania group by about $4,000,000 annually. The approximate number of Pennsylvania employes in each group affected is as follows, passenger conductors, 1,300; freight conductors, 2,400; passenger trainmen, 2,800; freight trainmen, 6,900; yard trainmen, 9,000; and switchmen, 1,300.

Pennsylvania, Illinois, Washington, Oregon, Arizona and Indiana inquiries.

Reports of proposed election contests brought up the rear. The most important of these revolved around the efforts of Democratic senatorial leaders to agree with William B. Wilson, defeated Democratic nominee in Pennsylvania, to bring a contest against Vare. Wilson, with aid of Joseph F. Guffey, Democratic national committeeman from Pennsylvania was reported gathering evidence now to substantiate a contest.

The Republicans meanwhile got some satisfaction out of a Democratic faction from Tennessee charging Senator Lawrence D. Tyson (D) with spending $1,800,000 in his senatorial campaign two years ago. A request for an immediate investigation was before the senate elections committee but no action will be taken on it until next week when Tyson's accusers will come here to explain their charges. The group is headed by John R. Neal, one of the defense attorneys in the famous Scopes evolution trial.

Orville Slater and Ledford King, two of the injured in the hospital at Princeton, Ind., died early today.

Three Missing

Another rescue crew, to replace the one which brought Rohl and Ratcliff to the surface, immediately went back into the mine to search for Claudie Wright, Emory West, and Walter Thomas, who still are missing.

With the finding of the last two victims the slight hope that had been held out for the missing went a glimmering. Mine rescue officials told International News Service they have little hope of finding the three alive.

Unusual Photograph Shows Thrilling Rescue at Sea

This picture shows the actual rescue of the survivors of the British sloop Valerian, which foundered in a storm off Bermuda. A boat from the H. M. S. Capetown is shown negotiating heavy seas to reach the raft to which seven battered men clung.

Town Talk

Every now and then letters evidently intended to be placed in the postoffice are found in The News office, when the office is opened up in the morning. It is apparent that some strangers have been making the mistake of taking the News office as the postoffice. They have probably been directed to the postoffice on North Mercer street and as The News building is near and is an imposing looking structure, make the mistake of posting their letters at this office. There is a large mail chute in the front door and the letters are dropped through this. News employes see that the letters are properly mailed when found but they have no desire to supplant the regular postoffice in this respect.

New Castle street department employes are already embarked on their annual winter task of hauling snow. Last winter hundreds of truck loads were hauled from Washington street and dumped in the river. The task has already started and indications are that this winter is going to afford no little work of this nature. In order to keep traffic moving properly on the downtown streets it is necessary that he snow be hauled off. Usually the street car company sweeper and the city scrapers pile the snow in the gutters and then it is hauled away in trucks.

The Community Christmas tree that has been erected on the public square is much larger than any that has ever been placed in that locality heretofore during any holiday season. It is a most attractive Christmas symbol and when lighted up can be seen for blocks.

More attention is being given the matter of Christmas decorations by business houses this year than usually. Numerous stores are making an especially noticeable appeal because of the holiday attire and exterior decorations.

Somebody said that news was dead today.

I believe that it was the lady writer of obituaries, that said it.

But its all a mistake, for she came in all out of breath and related a sight that she had just seen, which is not in keeping with present day conditions and is certainly a "dead" issue as far as the ladies of today are concerned.

For this is what she saw. A lady crossing one of the downtown streets and actually holding up her skirt, so that it would not become bedraggled in the slush of the street.

Now we wouldn't believe it, because it is so long since we saw a skirt of that type, that we are of the opinion that no such critters exist. In fact, like the man of the stone age, they're obsolete.

But it did occur, all right because the obituary editor, is a person who never exaggerates. Certainly, it shows the present trend of times to go away back to get something new.

feared violence was betrayed by a big knife which he carried, now in custody of county officers. A long-barreled .32-caliber revolver was found beneath the tick of Mrs. Politano's bed. It had not been fired. The bullets which entered his face and one eye were steel-jacketed. The murder mystery is deepened by failure to find the shells. It is said an automatic throws out the shells.

While Mrs. Politano discussed the Martins Ferry incident with reluctance, officials are inclined to believe that the murder may have resulted from the Politano bombing of the Martins Ferry building.

Wife Heard Shots

Mrs. Politano heard the shots, rushed to the room and found her husband in a pool of blood. She notified Mike Paul, a neighbor, who notified Deputy Sheriff William Reynolds and County Detective Kennedy. Within a short time three motor cars filled by Reynolds, Kennedy, Coroner Caldwell, District Attorney Bryan and a squad of city police, Logan, James and Thomas, and a News reporter, drew up at the murder house.

Trace Slayer's Tracks

They saw the tracks in the snow where the man had peered through the window. They found a window open on the opposite side of the house. There were no shoe prints there. When they entered the room the man was warm but dead. Reynolds found a 32.-caliber steel bullet on a pillow where it fell after travelling through the front of the victim's face. The other four bullets are still in his head. The five shells could not be found. This is regarded as significant by the investigators.

Mrs. Politano was questioned and she said her husband always slept fully attired on the lounge and with the kitchen door locked by a bar. As the slayer entered the door, it is not yet known how the door became unlocked unless Politano forgot to lock it before falling asleep. They say he raised the window open before he laid down.

One of the men who is said to have visited the house while Politano was in jail recently on a liquor charge was taken into custody at two a. m. by Reynolds, Logan, Thomas and James at the direction of County Detective Kennedy. He was released when he accounted for his movements.

Mrs. Politano was married to the victim when 13 years old. From the marriage five children were born. They are: Rose, 10; John, eight; George, five; Carlo, seven, and Edith, four. They attend Clifton Flats school and are unusually bright.

As police officials conducted their investigation the wife cried and the children tugged at her skirts and hugged her neck. However, when asked to divulge the names of men who had visited the home while her husband was in jail she gave answers only reluctantly.

It is believed that there was probably 45 minutes delay before word was dispatched to officers, which gave the assassin ample time to leave. His shoe prints in the snow showed him headed south on Pennsylvania avenue, but were lost when neighbors milled about in the snow.

Coroner James P. Caldwell said a postmortem would be held by Dr. John Foster at the Kelly morgue today. He is anxious, as are police, to know if the bullets were fired from an automatic. This can be established when the bullets are removed from the dead man's head.

County Detective Kennedy, Deputy Sheriff Reynolds and city police, who accompanied the county officers outside the city limits at the call of murder, said they plan to detain Mrs. Politano for further questioning in an effort to discover if she knows anything more than she would tell them up to four a. m.

Drs. John Foster and W. C. Burchfield today conducted a postmortem on the body of Frank Polatina, shot and killed last night by an unknown assailant.

It showed he had been struck by six bullets. The bullet found by Sheriff's Deputy William Reynolds was the steel missile that was shot into Polatina's eye.

The physicians found the other five bullets imbedded in his jawbones and neck but could not remove them without scarring the man's features. They were not removed.

Police Chief Dysart today when questioned if steel jacket bullets could be shot from a revolver which is ordinarily used for lead bullets said "Yes".

He discovered this recently, he said, when police investigated a suicide. A steel bullet had been fired and the cylinder held the shell.

This shows, it is said, that death pellets could have come from an ordinary .32-calibre revolver which was carried away by the slayer.

There is a Santa Claus. All the moderinists and so-called sensible people to the contrary, there is a Santa Claus. And there always will be as long as childhood faith lasts, as long as there is peace on earth, good will to men, as long as the sun shall shine and childish voices shall prattle, there will be a Santa Claus.

Local U. S. Marine Is Guarding Mails

QUANTICO, Va., Dec. 10.—Among the U. S. Marines who were first selected to guard the mails against possible attacks by bandits is William DeMiero, formerly of New Castle, Pa., who was stationed here prior to his assignment to this important duty.

He is one of several picked men from Quantico who began their duties as mail guards immediately after President Coolidge had given his approval. They are now furnishing protection to the mails in transit, guarding important postal centers and insuring the safe delivery of valuable mail packages. They may not return to this post for several months.

William lived at the home of his mother, Mrs. Anna DeMiero, 825 Jefferson street, New Castle, before he joined the Marine corps at Pittsburgh last January. It is the first time Marines have guarded the mails since November, 1921, when they were assigned this task for about four months. During this period no mail robberies were reported.

Merry Irish And Jewish Mixup Is Kosher Kitty Kelly

Jolly and Wild of 1927, Stage Attraction at The Penn, Is Fine Entertainment.

No humor of the present age seems to have the appeal that the mix-up fun of the Irish and Jewish combination. Some of the most successful plays and pictures ever staged feature the Kellys and the Cohens, the common names for the characters. Starting with that famous comedy "Abie's Irish Rose", which is still a big time stage show, through the "Cohens and the Kellys" the pictures and plays rule supreme. The latest and what is considered the best of these is "Kosher Kitty Kelly" in which Vera Gordon, Viola Dana and Nat Carr are the leading lights, is now showing at the Penn Theatre. It opened Thursday night to a very large house and will show again today and tomorrow. It is a riot of fun and roars and the kind of a play that will make everyone laugh.

The Penn also is offering a fine stage presentation in Jolly and Wild of 1927 a man, a woman and a piano, and the cleverest bit of comedy fun and dialogue that has been presented anywhere in a long time. Be sure and see "Kosher Kitty Kelly" and Jolly and Wild of 1927. The short comedy is "Jolly Tars" and the World News, Penn Orchestra and Penn Organ make a complete program.

CONGRESS AND THE CONSTITUTION

UNDER the present apportionment among the states of the representatives the vote of an inhabitant of Los Angeles is worth only a fifth as much as the vote of a Kansas farmer, for the average rural congressional district contains about 200,000 people, whereas the City of the Angels, which like the rural district has only one congressman, has more than five times that many inhabitants. Detroit has even less representation than Los Angeles. All over the country the cities are under-represented in congress and rural districts over-represented.

Such a situation is illegal, of course. Indeed, it is in direct violation of the constitution which makes it mandatory upon congress to reapportion the representation of congressional districts upon completion of every decennial census. Yet there has been no such reapportionment since 1910 and there is little likelihood that there will be any during the current session of congress.

History records that "equal representation" was one of the rights claimed by the American colonists and for which the Revolutionary war was fought. If it was sufficient provocation for war 150 years ago it ought to be worthy the attention of congress today.

Rural districts with their enviable records for upholding American ideals and obedience to the constitution will resent the charges made by urban congressmen that the rural congressmen are using their control of congress to prevent a reapportionment that would restore representation between city and country.

CHOICE OF STATE FLOWER AGAIN PROPOSED

BLAIR county schools will renew the efforts to have the Pennsylvania legislature approve the choice of a state flower. This commonwealth is now reputed to be the only one in the union which has not adopted a floral emblem. Some, of course, are duplicates. The subject is one that politicians can hardly get excited about, though about thirty legislatures have gone on formal record in the matter.

In half a dozen states the people have made the choice and in a slightly larger number the schools have cast the verdict. Since there is precedent for leaving the matter to the school children, they might well take the decisive step here, if educators feel it important that Pennsylvania should ultimately come into line.

U. S. PAYROLL SHRINKS

IT TAKES time, but it is being done. The federal payroll is dwindling, not rapidly but there is a steady reduction.

Back in 1916, on the eve of American entrance into the World War, there were 438,057 names on the civil service payroll. On Armistice Day, November 11, 1918, the record number of 917,760 was reached. Another year of war would have pushed it to more than 1,000,000. On June 30, 1926, the civil service list had been reduced to 560,705.

But, patronage is patronage, as the Philadelphia Public Ledger points out, whether it is a $10,000-a-year collectorship or a clerk's $1200-a-year job in the Bureau of Fisheries.

THE PAPER FROM THE OLD HOME TOWN

At evening when the work of day is o'er,
And for a bit of reading I sit down,
The reading I do first and which I like the most
Is the paper from my old home town.

I know what's going on back there at home,
In Arcady where I first trod the ground,
For news of it I thirst, and always get it first
In the paper from my old home
town.

I like to think of those I used to know,
The boys and girls with whom
I once went 'round;
I'm posted on their doings, their travels and their wooings
By the paper from my old home town.

At times when I go back and meet old friends,
Who tell me news of Smith, or
Jones or Brown,
I tell them that I know it, because I read about it
town.

If you have moved away from former scenes
In search of greater riches or renown,
To keep old mem'ries bright and gain a new delight
Read the paper from your old home town.

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 4:33. Sun rises tomorrow 7:15.

New species of insects are being found and classified at the rate of 6,000 a year. We must be getting our immigration statistics down to a scientific basis.

The ladies who sue rich men to get a bundle of swag from them are not the poor little innocent creatures they would have one believe they are after the lawyers get through with them in court. Gold diggers have to be brazen if they would get the plunder.

There are some things in the South that will not appeal to some northern people who would travel there. One is a new jail 27 stories high being built in Miami. We don't have jails that high around here, but they are high enough for most people.

A university professor declares "No one is taught how to spend money." That's so, but as a rule no one needs to be taught. It seems to come natural to most people. We mean the spending, not the getting of money.

A man isn't down until he has fallen so low that a luncheon club won't invite him to speak.

A band of saxophone players is said to be roaming around over this country. It will be well for the members of it to remember what happened to Germany.

Some of the birds who declare they stand for peace and all that goes with it don't even encourage it.

Our friends are those who tell us our faults and help us try to correct them, which is one reason why most of us prefer mere acquaintances.

Life insurance companies put kissing in the list of hazardous occupations. There's reason for that, too. You never can tell what is in the stuff they smear on their lips.

A man at Conneaut Lake has worn the same mittens for 20 years. Of course, mittens are only worn in the winter time, and it is so cold around the lake that there is no style and the only thing needed is comfort.

Silence is golden, which is probably the reason why they never figure on it to help out with the campaign expenses.

President Coolidge usually uses very few words, but it took nearly two pages of this great family newspaper to give his message to the people around here. It was the longest effort he ever made and we were so surprised we did not read it quite all.

An actress lady who is having quite a bit of trouble in separating a Pittsburgh millionaire from a bundle of his plunder is reported to have said that she would rather be married to a poor man than be "maintained" by a rich man. She evidently knows what she is talking about, except perhaps being married to the poor man.

Things have come to the point where daughter sometimes feels it her duty to read the book before permitting it to fall into the hands of her old-fashioned mother.

In the selection of the jury in the case of the murdered Canton, O., editor, religion, prejudice and bootleggers enter into the discussion and fitness of the juror. Those things can make any case interesting without any trimmings.

"The sovereignty of the American citizen," says President Coolidge, "has irresistibly led to the realization of the dignity of his occupation, and that's something a fool Red can never understand.

While the king of Roumania was being operated upon under a local anesthetic he contentedly puffed at a cigar. The king isn't so much of a mollycoddle after all, which we thought after he left his wife come to this country and have a good time all alone.

A Pittsburgh lady got a divorce from her husband because he showed more regard for his 15 dogs than he did for her. He must have been sort of a dog himself. Bet the old girl thought it, anyhow.

A talking machine company has just been sold for forty million dollars. That isn't any of that talk that is cheap that we hear so much about.

Most every day somebody asks us what we would like to have for a Christmas gift and we try to answer them as best we can without showing too much interest, but if anyone is going to give us an automobile we would like to at least whisper to them the kind we prefer.

"You don't love me like you used to," complained Ruth.
"Well," answered Paul, "don't you expect me to keep up with the latest developments?"

Every person who builds a house should see to it, as the most important thing in that house being a heating plan that will keep the house warm at all times in the winter. It can be done nicely. This will be a surprise to a lot of people who have gotten up and gone to bed shivering all their lives. We are not boosting heating plants, only giving you a pointer worth while.

If the Republicans in the Senate and in Congress ever get after some of those birds elected from the South in those bodies there will be some real sensations. The way they carry on elections in the South will not bear the light of day, and the spending of money in the north is decent compared to the things they do to be elected in the South.

Along about this time of the year the Hints and Dints Man has to depend upon his friends to furnish him with some short Christmas material. It can be in poetry or prose, or in any other shape. We just have to have this column more or less Christmassy.

President Coolidge is really setting a precedent in asking congress not to meddle with new laws at the short session of the present congress, and it is a good precedent at that. Many members of the present bodies have been elected by the voters to stay home next term and why should they impose new laws upon the people who repudiated him.

A scientist claims to have perfected a thought reading machine which if true, is but another name for a device that is going to make a lot of people uncomfortable.

Germany promises to make herself independent of the United States in gasoline, but we are not worrying about that. We can use all we make in this country and some of these days, at the rate we are building and selling cars, we many have to buy a little from some other country.

Well, anyway, Queen Marie can't claim we didn't treat her as one of the family. We criticised her frankly, pried into her secrets, gave her no privacy and told her just where she got off. What more we could have done we're at a loss to know.

Ma Ferguson now has her bust in the Texas Hall of Fame, but even her most rabid partisans don't go so far as to claim it is a perfect 36.

A turkey by any other name would be a turkey just the same and probably cost just as much.

What better evidence of a socialistic trend can one have than the fact that a social register of the 400 now contains 20,000 names.

Crawford county is talking of paving North Main street road from Meadville to Cambridge Springs in the spring and if they do they will greatly shorten the distance between these two places besides making the road straighter and more direct. It will save time going to Cambridge Springs and Erie and remove some mighty mean curves. We're for everything that will make the roads straighter and shorter for the autoists.

One thing is sure that reading about the Hall-Mills case will not now prevent anyone from doing their Christmas shopping early.

If money really could talk the French franc could probably tell some very interesting stories about a number of Americans who have used them.

"Woman falls dead in street car." Doubtless some man offered her a seat.

Women may not be temperamentally fitted to drive a car, but it has been our observation that men are responsible for most of the accidents.

Gene Tunney is going to England to meet George Bernard Shaw. Well, a pugilist so literily inclined ought to make it interesting for a writer so pugnaciously disposed.

In time some chap will develop a method of conserving that wasted air in a hurricane for emergency use in keeping a punctured tire blown up until a victim can reach a service station.

Closing the Ford plant for a week will probably postpone the appearance of a couple of thousand new cars on the streets.

We read an advertisement in a paper of a druggist who wants a job. He says he is willing to work eight days a week and every other Sunday. How in the world did this man ever lose the job he had?

Noise indicating blow-out: "Pow-s-s-s-s-s-darn!"

Seven-word example of small-talk: "Are you married?" "That's my business." "Bigamist!"

"Did you buy that ninety-nine dollar hat you were raving over?"
"Yes."
"What did your husband think of it?"
"Why-er-he raved over it, too."

Airships—for Japan.

Japan has placed in Great Britain an order for twenty-five passenger airships, costing $50,000 apiece, each able to carry twenty passengers. These British-made Japanese machines will carry two engines developing 1,000 horsepower.

The Japanese are friendly and they are not worried over talk in the oil trial about serious trouble with Japan two or three years ago.

And it is fortunate that Japan is so friendly to us. For if they ever started a non-stop flight their ships wouldn't come down. This poor little country has a few ships that can go up, but they can't stay up.

Nice melons in Wall Street. The Woolworth Company, capitalized at $100,000,000 hands fifty millions in new stock to shareholders. The Fidelity-Phoenix Fire Insurance company gives shareholders 100 per cent more stock as a bonus, and there are others.

A stock exchange seat, selling at $175,000, new high price, is supposed to indicate confidence in a bull market. Lambs are usually bulls, and when lambs come in, stock brokers make money.

If your little boy has talent, learn from Paderewski, who has arrived here, how the good judges often go wrong.

As a youth Paderewski went to a great violin teacher in Berlin, who said to him, "You will never be a musician, so you might as well play the piano."

And Paderewski played the piano, a great pity. The violin excels the piano as the piano excels the tom-tom.

You will be glad to learn that your country is rich. In spite of gigantic expenditures, the country's excess income is now above four hundred million dollars. Democrats say five hundred millions.

Louis XIV, or the Duke of Orleans, regent, would have found a way to use that up quickly. But Coolidge is no Louis XIV. He wants to save those dollars, but warns against excessive tax cuts. The revenues may not always be so big.

Dr. Spahlinger, Swiss scientist, has shown that cattle can be made immune to tuberculosis by vaccination.

The fight against tuberculosis could be made successfully without vaccination, although that would be a great blessing, should it prove successful in advanced cases.

Good food, fresh air, rest and reasonable exercise are the tuberculosis cures that nature supplies.

Another maxim. The National City bank, formerly biggest in America, is now the biggest in the world, having increased its capital stock. There is a drop of comfort in this for stockholders that receive "rights and privileges" amounting to about $75,000,000, enough to be interesting.

Get a good bank, take care of it, and it will take care of you.

Supreme Court Justice William Harmon Black denounces "chicken-hearted judges and juries" that encourage crime, wants quick trials, with two-thirds of the jury deciding, no unanimous vote necessary.

The two-thirds idea would not suit criminals, and the prosperous among them would be obliged to purchase at least five of twelve jurors, whereas now one or two purchased "game guys" can prevent conviction.

Dr. Crane's Editorial

"WHEN I'VE SAID I'M SORRY"

In the chorus of a sentimental song there used to be the refrain:

"When I've said I'm sorry, what more can I do?"

The answer is:

"Don't do it again."

When a shop-keeper forgets all about my order and I call up about it and he tells me he forgot about it because of an extra rush or a shortage of help, instead of blaming the delivery boy or the telephone girl or saying the order must have been lost, I recognize him for an honest man and don't change shop-keepers—the first time.

The first time he says he is sorry I think more of him for telling the truth. But being sorry, or being honest, won't hold his trade if he continues to forget about my orders.

Being sorry is only the first mile. Not doing it again is the important second mile.

The world in its infinite circumference holds few more irritating objects than the "sorriers"—those who continue to be sorry, at the same time continuing to do the same thing.

It requires only a tongue to say you are sorry; but it takes a backbone to overcome the thing you are sorry for.

Being sorry is just the beginning, and to continue to be sorry without doing more is to stay in the same place without advance.

In a small town in the middle west lived a woman who was known as the prize repenter.

When the visiting evangelist held revivals each spring she got converted each year without a skip.

Being sorry is an emotional state; carrying out the reform requires a cold-blooded determination.

When a person is really sorry the first thing he will do is to make a definite plan with definite steps to avoid a repeating of the thing he is sorry for.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

TIT FOR TAT.

Every housewife knows the troubles incident to ordering groceries over the telephone. The family groceryman under these circumstances, often takes a mean advantage of the housewife, and sends her out good, bad, and indifferent groceries. The grocer generally fills the order all right for dry groceries, but he takes extreme liberties with the customer in filling orders for green goods.

A woman living in a Pennsylvania town not a thousand miles from New Castle, was upon an occasion last Summer very much distressed at the manner in which her good grocer filled her morning telephone order. Among the things ordered she had included two boxes of strawberries. When the groceries came, she found the strawberries were not up to standard,—they were very poor in fact. Some good ones on top, but many bad ones beneath. The strawberries appeared upon the bill, charged at fifty cents. She immediately called the groceryman on the phone and protested, and said that the strawberries were not what they should be.

The grocer was in a jocular mood, and knowing the housewife pretty well, answered, "You can't expect to get good berries all the time."

The customer let it go at that, and a few days later visited the groceryman's store, and made some purchases amounting to one dollar, and gave the groceryman two fifty cent pieces. As she was leaving the store, the grocer called to her: "Hold on a minute; one of these fifty cent pieces is bad! it's counterfeit."

Smilingly the housewife turned, and sweetly said to the storekeeper: "You can't expect to get good money all the time, can you?" and went out.

And there the situation rests.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST

At Christmas Time.

About this time of year I think I'd like to be a boy,
And know the glad illusions of the Christmas days of old,
I'd like to trade my wisdom for the long lost thrill of joy
Before the embers of desire had turned so gray and cold.

But now my little girl and boy are dancing with delight,
And now their eyes are open-wide
as once mine used to be,
And now they sit at supper time and prattle every night
Of treasures they shall wake to find upon their Christmas tree.

Now should a fairy come and say:
"A boy I'll make of you,
"I'll take away the weight of years and all your dreams restore.
I'll give you back your childhood
as you've wanted me to do"
I'm certain I should rise and show that fairy to the door.

For as I think it over and I watch their eyes aglow,
I wouldn't be a boy again if such a chance I had.
I swear I have a richer joy than any child can know,
When Christmas Day is coming I would rather be a dad.

POEMS HOME

BY CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

"Mary Morison," by Robert Burns.

Here is one of the Scottish poet's most famous and beautiful love poems, written to his Highland Mary. Just as Shelley has made the nightingale immortal, so Burns has made his Mary the adored of the world; and the expression of a passion like this glorifies all love, touches all lovers.

O Mary, at thy window be,
It is the wished, the trysted hour
Those smiles and glances let me see
That make the miser's treasure poor;
How blythely wad I bide the stoure,
A weary slave frae sun to sun,
Could I the rich reward secure,
The lovely Mary Morison.

Yestreen, when to the trembling string
The dance gaed thro' the lighted ha',
To thee my fancy took its wing,—
I sat, but neither heard nor saw:
Tho, this was fair, and that was braw,
And you the toast of a' the town,
I sighed, and said amang them a',
"Ye are na Mary Morison."

O Mary, canst thou wreck his peace
Wha for thy sake wad gladly dee?
Or canst thou break that heart of his,
Whase only faut is loving thee?
If love for love thou wiltna gie,
At least be pity to me shown;
A thought ungentle canna be
The thought of Mary Morison.

Plans Prepared For Viaduct And Bridge At Wampum

Main Structure, Spanning Beaver River, Will Be 400 Feet Long

GRADE CROSSINGS TO BE ELIMINATED

Expected That The Bridge Will Cost County And Railroads Over Half Million

County Engineer C. H. Mulholland this morning presented the completed plans for the proposed bridge and viaduct at Wampum to the county commissioners, who will send them to the Public Service Commission at Harrisburg.

According to the plans the viaduct will begin just north of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie tracks at Wampum. There will be a viaduct 100 feet long across the tracks of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Company to the west abutment of the bridge. The bridge over the Beaver river will be 400 feet long. It will consist of two spans of 200 feet each with a pier in the center of the river. It will have a width of 26 feet for the cartway and a sidewalk 6 feet wide.

Goes To Chewton

At the eastern end there will be another viaduct running up to Ann street in Chewton. The highway on Ann street will be hard surfaced to a point near the present road crossing the Baltimore & Ohio tracks. The tracks will be spanned by a viaduct of 130 feet, which will be connected with the hard surfaced road at the top of the Chewton hill.

The bridge will thus eliminate the grade crossings over the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie and the Baltimore & Ohio tracks. These crossings have always been among the most dangerous in the county, several people having been killed at them.

No Cost Estimate

No definite estimate of the cost of construction has been made by Engineer Milholland, but it is said that the bridge and viaduct is likely to cost over half a million dollars.

The cost will be borne by the county and the railroads. An effort will also be made to have the state pay a portion of the cost. The bridge and viaduct will be one of the largest undertakings ever attempted in Lawrence county.

After the plans have been inspected by the Public Service Commission, they will either be approved or sent back with recommendations for changes, but in the main, it is likely that the bridge will be constructed according to the plans with slight changes, as the matter was gone over tentatively by the Public Service Commission and those interested at a meeting held recently in Pittsburgh.

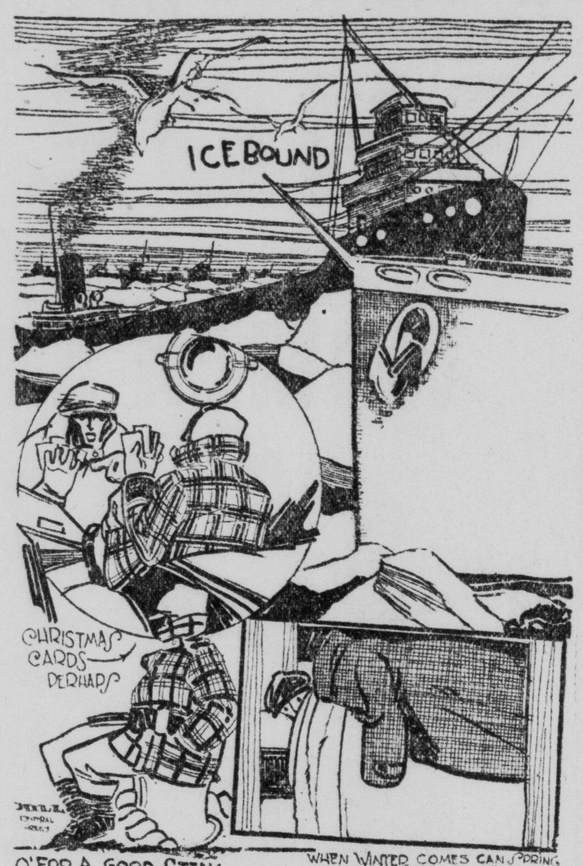
Sailors Marooned In Ice



Winter's onslaught caught a large fleet of Great Lakes' freighters unprepared, locking them, their crews and their cargoes in the ice in St. Mary's river, near Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. T. Crawford Hill, Central Press artist and sometime-sailor, herewith pictures the life of the helpless crews in the ice wastes of the northern Lakes.

By Central Press.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Dec. 9.—Ships and cargoes worth $150,000,000 tied up in the worst ice blockade in the history of the Great Lakes—

Crews crossing the ice for provisions as if they were North Pole explorers—

Fires low, bunkers depleted, men shivering—

Efforts made on more than 100 great steel vessels to safeguard them against furious winter storms—

Rescue ice breakers trying to crush through ponderous frozen masses—

This is the picture that greeted correspondents rushed to the scene.

All because winter caught ship owners napping.

The freeze-up occurred in the narrow up and downbound channels at Neebisch Island, off the upper peninsula of Michigan, 20 miles south of Sault Ste. Marie—the veritable neck of the passageway between Lake Superior ports and the lower lakes.

But what of the crews? "Why," says and old sailor, "it's a lark. I've been frozen in a number of times. It's a sort of polar vacation—a relief from the rush of life at home. Why, the best times I've ever had have come from being frozen in!"

Local Scouts Paid High Honor

Frank Zeigler, Jud Leibendorfer Are Made Eagle Scouts

ELLWOOD CITY, Dec. 10.—An impressive ceremony was enacted Thursday evening before hundreds of spectators when local boys were received into the Eagle Scout class at the Court of Honor which took place at the Knights of Columbus hall. Many other scouts received promotion.

Judge Emery delivered a fitting address and told the boys and their friends the true story of a boy whom he knew in New Castle which was an inspiration to all.

A playlet was depicted showing the spirit of the boy scouts, and a central figure emulating that spirit, and dressed in scout uniform directed the boys through doors that were built on the state. One door labeled "Arch of Achievement" only the Eagle scouts: Frank Zeigler, and Jud Leibendorfer could pass through, while the rest of the scouts passed through the lesser archs.

Names of local scouts who received special awards are as follows:

ALMA, Ga., Dec. 10.—Authorities here today abandoned the theory that the illiterate youth known as John Pittman is Erdman Olson, college student, wanted for the murder of his sweetheart in Prairie Du Chien, Wis.

Pittman will be held in jail, however, until some definite word is received from Wisconsin authorities, Sheriff Walter L. Johnson announced today.

Deny Motion For Change Of Venue In McDermott Case

For Third Time Judge Denies Motion: Special Panel Exhausted

By PAUL E. BROKAW
International News Service Staff Correspondent

COURTHOUSE, CANTON, O., Dec. 10.—For the third time since Patrick E. McDermott went on trial for his life, defense counsel today moved for a change of venue. The motion was overruled.

McDermott is charged with the murder of Don Mellett, Canton publisher.

The entire special panel of 40 potential jurors having been exhaused without completing the jury, court was then adjourned until one p. m. Meantime an additional venire was being served.

Water Nuisance To Be Alleviated Soon

Council today rejected all bids for the construction of a storm sewer in Balph avenue and Moravia street as the result of a conference with Shenango township supervisors, represented legally by Attorney Roy Mercer.

Shenango township officials claim that part of the water nuisance complained of is caused by the condition of streets in South New Castle borough and that the township and city are also partly responsible.

The situation will be alleviated without a court suit.

The Piercing Pains of Neuritis Can Now Be Stopped

In Twenty-four Hours Pains Cease and You Get Rest and Comfort Again

Torturing pains—the kind that pierce and burn and never seem to let up—that rob a man of his sleep—that make him just a bag of nerves and all worn out.

Those are the pains that dope and coal tar products can only relieve. You've got to get something more lasting.

The quickest, safest and surest way to get rid of the persistent, nerve-racking pains of Neuritis is to get a bottle of Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2. Be sure you get No. 2, which comes in capsule form. Take these little dark green capsules as directed and notice how in about 24 hours they have considerably reduced if not entirely banished those severe, torturing pains that have caused you so many sleepless nights. Continue for two or three days more or until the pains have entirely disappeared.

It doesn't matter how long you may have suffered or whether your Neuritis is in the shoulder, arm, neck or legs Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2 will stop the torture and give you speedy relief. McKee's Kut Rate Store, Eckerd's of New Castle, Inc., or any good druggist will be glad to supply you.

Citizenship Worth Much To 170 Foreign-Born Up At Naturalization Court

What is American citizenship worth?

To some 170 or more of New Castle's foreign-born who gathered with their witnesses at the court house this week for final examinations, American citizenship means a great deal.

They filed into the court room where H. C. McDougall of the Naturalization Department at Pittsburgh, was conducting examinations before Judge Hildebrand, until they completely filled the room. Many were standing in the aisles and around the ends of the seats.

All types were represented: small, bright-eyed southern Europeans, stalwart, fair-haired Teutons, former residents of Sunny Italy, Polish and other nationalities. There were a number of women applicants in the throng.

One Hundred Fail

Originally there were 301 before the examiner on preliminary examination. This was several days ago. At that time they were pretty thoroughly examined as to their knowledge of the law making powers of America and history of the country.

Most of them had little difficulty with the examiner's questions at that time, but over one hundred failed on essential points, and were told to study up and come back again. Those who were summoned to appear Thursday were those who had answered the questions satisfactorily, but for various reasons a few of them were stood aside and told to appear later.

In order to save time a group with their witnesses would be called inside the bar railing where Prothonotary R. M. Campbell, swore them to answer questions truthfully.

Each applicant had to have two witnesses to vouch for his good character. As the name of the applicant was called he would come before the court with a witness on either side.

Examination Brief

The examination was brief, consuming on an average, but little over one minute.

The questions asked included the following:

"Have you ever been arrested or charged with any crime?"

"Who makes the laws of our country?"

"How many senators are there from each state?"

"How many stars and stripes in the American flag?"

"What do the stars represent? What do the stripes represent?"

"Why do we celebrate the Fourth of July?"

"Are you married, and have you a family?"

As many other questions had been asked in the preliminary examination, but few others were asked. A number of the applicants had seen service in the world war.

After the applicant had been examined the witnesses were each asked how long they had known the applicant. Whether or not they knew of his ever having been arrested, and their opinion as to whether or not he would likely make a good citizen.

Take Oath Of Allegiance

Where the witnesses for an applicant were not native born, the examiner would ask to see naturalization papers. After the questions had been asked the examiner would turn to Judge Hildebrand and state whether or not he had any objection to the passing of the applicant.

When the applicants were passed they took their seats in the chairs usually reserved for jurors, and when these were filled, Phothonotary Campbell would administer the oath of allegiance.

The applicants were sworn to renounce allegiance to all foreign rulers, and to support and defend the constitution of the United States. Their papers will be issued to them as soon as they can be made out.

The class was one of the largest, if not the largest, ever before the court here at one time. For the most part they were an intelligent body of men, and seemed to be greatly pleased to become citizens of the United States.

You can take your choice. The longer the courtship, the less the disappointment.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, cresote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to cresote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Advertisement.

Heavy Trucks Are Damaging Bridges Officials Claim

Lawrence County Faces Huge Reconstruction Costs Within Few Years

Many bridges in Lawrence county are rapidly being destroyed by heavy trucks passing over them, according to the County Commissioners. Most of the bridges were built for wagon traffic, and were not constructed heavy enough to stand the great weights which are being placed on them by the trucks.

The bridge at Willow Grove, which was recently re-planked is an example of the light type construction, which is being shaken to pieces by heavy trucks. This bridge was adequate in the days when nothing heavier than farm wagons passed over it. Today, however, it is subjected to strains, which can only mean one thing—the speedy destruction of the bridge.

There is a great deal of heavy hauling over this bridge. Trucks pass this way in making trips from Pittsburgh and Beaver Valley. The drivers, it is claimed, do not even take the precaution to drive slowly over the bridge, but tear over it at such a rapid rate, that every piece of iron is set in vibration. It will only be a short time until this bridge, with many others will have to be replaced.

County commissioners forsee huge construction costs confronting Lawrence county at no distant day. It is claimed that heavy truck traffic is also doing more to disintegrate the concrete roads than anything else. Drivers and owners of these trucks it is claimed, do not pay anything like their proportionate share of the upkeep, considering the damage they do.

Marriage, Inspired By Liquor, Can't Be Annuled, Judge Says

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—Marriages inspired by alcohol are not subject to annulment on that excuse declared Judge Joseph Sabath of superior court in the hearing on the annulment suit of Mrs. Virginia Coons Meriweather, 18, daughter of Sanford E. Coons president of the Melba Manufacturing company.

The annulment was refused pending a further hearing on the law on annulments.

Virginia Coons was married August 18, this year to Ralph Ray Meriwether a bank clerk. On the marriage night Mrs. Meriweather said she and Meriweather were in a party and she for the first time took three drinks of gin. The next morning she was told she had been married to Meriweather.

Doheny Subjected To Stiff Grilling On Witness Stand

Millionaire Oil Man Can See No Reason For Suspicion In $100,000 Loan

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—In a voice low and husky, and at times almost unaudible, E. L. Doheny, oil magnate, under a rapid-fire cross examination by government counsel, told the jury in the oil conspiracy trial today that he could conceive of no reason why suspicion should attach to his loan of $100,000 to ex-secretary of interior Albert B. Fall, from whom he leased the Elk Hills Naval Oil reserve.

Owen J. Roberts, of the government staff, tried doggedly to break down the story of the loan, which Doheny said was a perfectly natural transaction between old friends who had suffered many hardships together. The old man stuck consistently to his earlier testimony.

Doheny was on the stand all told for about eight hours. With his testimony out of the way, the defense is expected shortly to rest its case, probably later today.

Methodist Reform Forces To Oppose Governor Smith

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The Methodist reform forces of the country will oppose Governor Al Smith of New York for the presidency not because he is a Catholic but because he is wet, Dr. Clarence True Wilson declared today in opening the 17th annual meeting of the Methodist Board of Temperance Prohibition and Public Morals.

Automobile Stolen Here This Morning

Carl Houk of Wampum, Pa., had his Chevrolet Coach parked on South Jefferson street this morning and when he went to get it shortly before 10:30 o'clock, he found that some person had appropriated it. The license number of the car was 315-043.

FIREMEN ANSWER CALL ON THURSDAY

Fryings left in a pan on the stove, while Mrs. H. M. Rea, of 230 Wick street, went upstairs to put the baby to sleep, was the cause of a fire alarm Thursday afternoon. While Mrs. Rea was upstairs the fryings caught on fire and caused considerable smoke. Neighbors saw the smoke and turned in an alarm from box 18. The loss was only that caused by the smoke.

In September 3,405,800 pounds of fish valued at $110,000 were landed on the coasts of northern Ireland.

Powder Worker Is Killed By Blast

HAMMOND, Ind., Dec. 10.—A terrific explosion in the Central Railway Signal Company powder house today killed one man instantly, injured a dozen women employes and caused damage that may exceed $100,000.

In the center of his Christmas table the Russian peasant places a bundle of straw, symbolic of the manger, and, before the meal, each guest draws from the bundle a blade of straw, the one who draws the longest being destined to live the longest.

Hall-Mills Case To Be Discussed By Rev. Pearson

Local Rector Attended Same College With Rev. Hall And Knew He And His Wife Quite Well

"The Hall-Mills murder case, an unsolved mystery," will be the subject taken by the Rev. Philip C. Pearson, in Trinity church, at the corner of North Mill and East Falls Streets, on Sunday evening at the service beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Mr. Pearson went to college with Mr. Hall and knew him well: He met Mrs. Hall at a dinner party in New Brunswick, New Jersey at the home of one of her cousins. Thus he will speak from first hand knowledge, being free now to do so, as the jury has rendered its verdict and the case is over for the present. What Mr. Pearson will have to say will be of special interest to young people.

The way he handled the Lady Cathcart case, and other current events topics on previous occasions leads to the conclusion that the Rector of Trinity may have something of more than ordinary interest and meaning to contribute to our thinking.

Fred Stover Will Speak At Banquet

Former Commander-In-Chief Will Be Present At Foreign Vets Banquet

Considerable enthusiasm is being displayed by those who have been included in the guest list for the V. F. W. Booster banquet, which will be held in the dining room of the Fountain Inn, next Thursday evening at 6:30 p. m.

This event will mark the entrance of Corporal Harry L. McBride Post, 522, Veterans of Foreign Wars, into the ranks of the city's civic clubs, being composed largely of young men, all of whom served during war time on Foreign soil, in the cause of Uncle Sam, they will add considerable to those forces who for past years have strived to make New Castle a better place in which to live.

It is extremely unfortunate that this event cannot be thrown open to the public, and only the limited facilities for serving, makes it necessary for the invitations to be limited in number, an effort has been made to extend invitations to the leaders in their particular lines of business, etc., thereby guaranteeing a truly representative assemblage of the community.

Fred Stover, well known business man of this district, having served as District Governor of Rotary, also as Commander-in-Chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, which in addition to his varied interests in the business world, qualifies him as one who can speak with authority, on the various problems confronting every citizen who is interested in the growth and prosperity of their duty.

Congressman-elect Dr. J. Howard Swick, will greet his friends, for the first time since his election, at the Booster Banquet; and it will give those who attend an opportunity to become better acquainted with, the man who will represent them in Washington. He too, is a man well qualified by reason of his profession, and his financial and manufacturing experience, to speak intelligently on civic progress.

Cambria County Business Men Are Convicted

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 10.—Nine Cambria county business men today stood convicted of fraudulent banking practices and using the mails to defraud in connection with a scheme which resulted in a loss of $123,000 to the Bank of Benson, Hollsopple, Pa., by verdict of a jury in federal court here.

A tenth defendant, Mrs. Martha V. Jones, former assistant cashier of the bank, was acquitted, after nearly five hours' deliberation.

The convicted men, mainly from Johnstown, were alleged to have conspired to defraud neighboring banks in a scheme involving nearly $2,000,000.

The defendants were released on bond ranging from $5,000 to $10,000, to await sentence January 18.

May Lay Walk On Atlantic Ave.

Atlantic avenue, especially that section between Mahoning avenue and the west side city line, has been the scene of many fatal and serious accidents to pedestrians, as a result of the fact that while hundreds of people find occasion to walk along that roadway every day, that there is no place for them to do so except on the cartway.

It is now being suggested that one of the most important "safety first" moves that could be made in this district at the present time would be the promotion of the proposition to lay sidewalks, at least on one side of the roadway, between the points mentioned.

Troop 21 Meeting.

Troop 21 held its regular meeting Wednesday evening with the Scoutmaster John R. Dunfee in charge. Fourteen scouts were present, including two patrol leaders and one assistant patrol lader.

The meeting was taken up chiefly with business. A new scout, James Stinger, was entered into the troop.

Miss Cora Ritchie, secretary of the Y. W. C. A. gave troop 14, under Scoutmaster Fred Wilkes, a chicken dinner Thursday evening at the Y. W. C. A. Twenty scouts were present. The table was beautifully decorated with flowers. After the dinner a beautiful bouquet was presented Miss Ritchie by the boys of the troop. Miss Brown was the special guest of the evening.

Police Get 45 Robbery Calls During Month

Few people outside the police realize the number of times that calls are received at the police station concerning robberies, holdups and petty thieving cases.

Some idea of the amount of this business that there is for the city police to investigate is given in the record of such type of work at the police station for the month of November.

In all there were forty-five such cases reported in that month, and this included one holdup, a shoplifting case said to involve approximately $500 and numerous instances of the theft of automobile tires and parts.

The estimated amount involved in the numerous robberies, holdups, etc., is $2,305.

OUTDOOR CLUBS PLANT 329,600 TREES IN YEAR

(Special To The News)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec., 10. — According to figures compiled by the State Department of Forests and Waters, 39 hunting and other outdoor clubs planted a total of 329,600 forest trees during 1926. The largest planting was made by the Berks County Rod and Gun Club of Reading. Last spring the members of this club set out 55,450 trees and this fall they planted 30,000 more trees. The Crystal Springs Rod and Gun Club of Clearfield comes second with 40,000 trees planted on their land in Clearfield county. The Little Pine Fish and Game Club of Waterville stands third. Its members planted 25,200 trees in Lycoming county.

Forest tree planting has the hearty approval of and active support of the State Game Commission, whose representatives set out a total of 126,000 trees last spring on the game refuges of the State. Hunters from all parts of the state report that pheasants, quail, and rabbits, as well as deer and bear, are frequently found in forest tree plantations, where they have the best of shelter and protection. Thousands of wild animals would perish each winter if it were not for these evergreen coverings under which they take shelter from the extreme cold, deep snows, and strong winds.

According to John W. Keller, Chief of Forest Extension in the State Department of Forests and Waters the natural evergreen stands of forest trees in Pennsylvania are now too few and small for the rapidly increasing game population. He points out that evergreen plantations are easy and cheap to make. Seedling trees will be supplied by the Department of Forests and Waters at $1.50 per thousand. These evergreen plantations will do much to perpetuate and improve the game supply for the hunters of Pennsylvania, whose number is now considerably beyond the half million mark.

Famous African Lion Hunter Is Finally Killed

(International News Service)

JOHANNESBURG, Dec. 10—Van der Merwe, a famous northern Traansval farmer who had killed 38 lions, was himself a victim of the 39th.

He and a companion followed a blood spoor on horseback, when suddenly a wounded lioness charged from the bushes.

Both men fired, but the lioness caught Ven der Merwe and pulled down the rider, who was terribly mauled, and died later from blood poisoning.

Linesville May Lose Its Trolley Service

LINESVILLE, Pa., Dec. 10.—A public hearing upon an application by the Northwestern Electric Service company to abandon a six mile stretch of street railway extending from Harmonsburg to Linesville is to be held at the court house at Erie on December 15 at 9:30 a. m.

Notice of the application made to the Public Service Commission of Pennsylvania has been advertised in the newspapers and posted in many places throughout the district served by the line.

Although those people interested will be given a chance to voice their disapproval to the abandonment of the line it is understood generally that there is little or no opposition to the move. The line has been operating at a loss to the company for some years and with the installation of bus service between Meadville and Linesville it is believed that patrons of the line are accommodated in even better fashion than heretofore.

FAMILY RICH BY CENTURY OLD WILL

WILMINGTON, Dec. 10.—Mrs. Mary Davenport of Claymont; her daughter Mrs. Mary Cohee of Richardson Park, and her granddaughter Mrs. W. G. Gregg will benefit with three other heirs under the will of John Marshall, first chief justice of the United States

Marshall left 50,000 acres of coal lands but as the property was not considered valuable it was never divided among the heirs and the government took it over. Bituminous coal deposits worth $20,000,000 were found there recently.

Things even up. In lands where people make less there are fewer things to spend it for.

Mourned As Dead For 57 Years, Man Returns To Toledo

(International News Service)

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 10. — John O'Herlihy, 77, came home today after an absence of 57 years and gazed with bewilderment at a handsome statue in his memory.

"The old town ain't what she used to be" he mused as his gaze rested on a skyscraper which occupied the former site of a cowshed on his father's farm.

The veteran also learned that the farm pond is now a municipal lake and that beautiful Church of the Immaculate Conception had been built from his inheritance, forfeited when he had been declared legally dead.

O'Herlihy ran away from his father's place when he was a stripling. Toledo was hardly more. The farm then was on the edge of the village which long since has grown into a city with the farm at its center.

The wanderer who had been shunned by good fortune in his peregrinations, cast a ruminating eye at the massive marble slab which commemorated the good deeds of a youth who had willed his all to the church.

His relatives all are dead and but few persons recognized the grizzled man. They saw him read the inscription and then slowly trod out of town.

Mrs. Humphreys Writes More About Florida

In a letter received by The News from Mrs. S. M. Humphreys of St. Cloud, Fla., the writer tells of an interesting trip through a part of Florida and the evidences of bounteous crops and increasing prosperity. Mrs. Humphreys spikes the stories in circulation throughout the country that Florida is dead and that it is over-run with reptiles.

According to her letter, business is going on as usual and while there are some developments started in the boom days, which are now almost a thing of the past, that the real cities and towns of the state are going ahead and will prove their worth. As far as reptiles are concerned, according to Mrs. Humphreys, there are no more there than in Pennsylvania.

Her letter follows:

Saint Cloud, Fla.,
Dec. 5, 1926.

The News, New Castle, Pa.

Our first month has been largely spent in seeing Florida from a Ford. It has been a real holiday to all of us. After seeing Sanford with its celery and lettuce, we spent a day at Melbourne Beach, coming home via the Cheny-Dixie highway through Orlando. The Midway route that runs direct from Kissimmee to Melbourne through Saint Cloud is very rough in places, and under construction in the St. Johns river section where the summer storms made some bad washouts in the fills. It is passable but one loses time getting through the new marl. After Melbourne our next visit was to DeSoto Beach. This is also reached by the Cheny highway route turning north and crossing the Indian river at Titusville. We were hardly expecting the 20-mile drive that we found intervened between the river and the beach but kept on and really enjoyed it, although it is through an undeveloped section of cabbage palms, palmettos and sand dunes. There is a shell road rather rough and wash-boardy but solid. There is nothing at DeSoto Beach but a real estate project left over from the boom days. The beach itself is lovely enough to pay one for the trouble in reaching it and we ate lunch on the sand and hunted shells for a couple of hours, reaching home in time for late supper.

Thanksgiving was celebrated with our usual picnic dinner. This time we went to the Baily farm, taking our fishing outfits along. I think Mrs. Rounds made high score that day, carrying off the ribbons in three classes—first fish caught, largest fish landed and most in number. Dinner was enjoyed by all and consisted of chicken, roast pork and sweet potatoes and all the trimmings, including pumpkin pie.

Last Monday morning we stored our lunch basket and suit cases in bundle carrier and set out to see the gulf. The route chosen led us through Winter Haven and Bartow in which section we got into some of the best citrus groves in the state. The crop is very heavy and little is picked yet. It is rather unusual to see citrus trees breaking with their load as the wood is very tough but many trees are being ruined by the weight of fruit. At Arcadia we stopped to visit our Florida Baptist orphanage. More than a hundred children are cared for here and trained to fit them to make their own way before they are sent out from the institution. It has the appearance of a real home. They maintain their own laundry, bakery, dairy and school and with considerable land at their disposal raise much of their own vegetables. Our first night was spent at Punta Gorda on Charlotte harbor. When I asked a young man what we could see that was interesting he said the town wasn't much to look at but that they shipped more fish than any other town in the U. S. We looked at the fishing boats here from a distance as most of them were out when we left in the early morning. At Venice we stopped to see a city in the making. This project is about ten months old and is already assuming city airs with lights, paved streets, shrubbery, water and sewers. It is being backed by the "Brotherhood" and with this solid mass of railroad men behind it bids fair to become one of the finest developments in the state.

Sarasota gave us another glimpse of the gulf and an idea of what is being done to develop its natural beauty. The Ringling money here is doing wonders with causeways, bridges and highways. We visited the pier in time to see some fine red fish being unloaded and gathered shells along the beach near the causeway. We spent the night in Bradenton, driving to Tampa in the early morning. We visited Port Tampa before going across the Gaudy bridge and saw oil vessels from Texas discharging their cargo. St. Petersburg was a delight. Wide streets and lovely drives delighted us until the sun was getting low, when we took a chance at getting a room in an inviting looking home and were pleased to find that the lady who so kindly took us in was Mrs. Miller of Ashland and Akron, O., and a cousin of Mrs. Leohner of New Castle, whom I had known years ago at Ellwood. Daylight awoke me next morning and by accelerating our movements a little we were able to get dressed and down to the new pier in time to see the sun rise out over the bay. I want to ask the Tuesday Afternoon Kensington if they can imagine Mrs. Rounds getting out to see a Pennsylvania sunrise the last of November. Well, that is what this climate does to you.

Passadena, Pass a Grille and the Jungle combined to make the next morning another not to be forgotten. We drove north as far as Tarpon Springs where the sponge boats and curiosity stores interested us greatly. We spent Thursday night at Dunedin. The Dunedin Isles project is another one which seems to have weathered the slump and is continuing their development.

Driving back through Tampa we stopped at the municipal docks where a four-masted vessel was being overhauled preparatory to setting out on its return trip to Boston, and then drove home, reaching Saint Cloud about 4 p. m. Friday.

Now I will answer some questions that have been sent me, in the light of what I have sene in marching about. First, Florida is not dead. The boom, hysteria or whatever you want to call the unhealthy condition of the past two years has disappeared, leaving many mushroom projects to bleach their bones in the wilderness. Legitimate business is going ahead and I am persuaded will continue to do so. Second: Living expenses are much lower than last year here and a better assortment to choose from. Third: The storm has not affected the state as a whole. Not any more than the Lorain, O., storm affected New Castle. Fourth: The stories of reptiles over-running the state is too ridiculous to notice. The man who plowed my garden turned out a ground snake, and I have seen two blacksnakes, one living, the other dead, in my travels. I probably would have seen that many on almost any summer day driving in Pennsylvania. The big busses, what of these are in evidence, are on regular schedules between towns and I haven't seen one of those abominations that tormented us last year, the bus fillers and binder boys, this fall. May they never return.

Tourists are coming in more rapidly since the weather is getting older up north, but we do not look for the number we had last year. I scan the benches at the horse shoe pitching ground every time I pass to see if there are any new arrivals from Lawrence county.

Mrs. Lee from Ellwood is here spending some time with her daughter, Mrs. Roy Newton. When I returned Friday I found Mrs. Ellsworth Hill's card in my door. They stopped in Saint Cloud a couple of days on their way to Zephyr Hills from their home in Hadley, Mercer county.

Weather is fine and we are enjoying new onions from our garden planted since we came down. Peas, beans, lettuce and carrots are growing finely but my radishes seem to have evaporated or disappeared some way.

Great Metropolis Is City For Young Man; Few Older Residents

By ARTHUR WIMER
(New York Correspondent New Castle News)

NEW YORK, Dec. 10. — New York City is a town for the young man. It's hurrying taxis, its rushing subways, its Wall Street, its carefree night life on the Great White Way—all these are for the young and not the old. At least such is the attitude of Edmund S. Cogswell, Research Director of the National Civic Federation. And Mr. Cogswell quotes figures in defense of his belief.

"The United States census for 1922," declared Director Cogswell when interviewed, "shows that in New York City only 3.1 per cent of the population is over sixty-five years of age. In Albany 5.8 per cent of the residents are older than sixty-five, in Rochester 4:6 per cent, and in Syracuse 4.8 per cent. And the census also reveals that in most towns and cities in the United States more than 18 per cent of the population is sixty-five years old or over.

"The fact that New York's percentage is so low does not mean that people past middle age die more quickly in New York City. How could they when this city has a good water supply, wonderful climate, the best of foods and a vast variety of them, and good warm clothing which sells for moderate prices, considering that this is the clothing market of the world?

"Aside from that we have wonderful medical facilities.

"But New York is a thriving growing city into which young people from all over the world come to settle. The older people have already become settled in their riches in the small towns, remain there in the rut."

Mr. Cogswell continued by pointing out that the youngsters come to the dazzling glitter of New York and remain there until they have amassed fortunes or until their courage and hopes have ebbed and forced them out of the city to seek the comfort of the smaller towns. Those who do succeed find life in the great city too strenuous for them as they grow old, and they retire to the quiet of country homes or less active towns, he said.

"This is not an explanation of statistics but of facts which I have observed in my work," explained Director Cogswell.

"The hectic life of New York is made by and for the young people. A person past middle age is ready for more serious things than eternal amusement, but material happiness is necessary to the life of the young. It draws them to the Great White Way—Broadway. Then there is the Stock Exchange, Wall Street, the opportunity to take business chances afforded in no other city as much as in New York. The older man holds on to his money, the younger is willing to gamble.

Mr. Cogswell showed how the censorship of young folks in small towns tends to drive them into New York. He declared that no one thinks of censoring a person over sixty-five, but that the youngster, who craves freedom, directs his travels toward New York City with all its vastness in which he becomes a mere atom whose affairs are entirely his own.

"The abnormal hurry—the rush of the subway, the elevated. I almost added the street cars," concluded Mr. Cogswell, "is too much for a person over sixty-five who has not lived with it all his life. And considering the modern flats of the city, with all due respect to the real estate men, an old person cannot very well exist in the sunless, oft-times heatless, rooms. But a young person is willing to live in them because health is his and he can withstand inconveniences.

"Decidedly, all in all, New York City is a workshop and playground for the young person and not for the old."

American Credit System Success Germans Declare

(International News Service)

BERIN, Dec. 10.—The American credit system has sucessfully invaded Germany and is said to be a tremendous impulse in business life and a stimulation for production.

Buying on credit in the old days was considered something disgraceful. Only people of "no class and standing" used to do that. The prejudice has now been overcome like so many things adored and worshipped by the Germans before the war.

Berlin department stores in cooperation with a banking company have started a new credit system which so far worked to the benefit of both the creditor and the debtor. Applications for "cheque books" may be sent in to the banking firm by any Berliner. The firm upon receiving the application starts an investigation as to the status of the applicants and issues a "cheque book" with the full amount of credit granted to this particular "customer."

With this cheque book the customer simply has to go to the department store where he can buy things in the maximum amount of his credit but has to pay 25 per cent of the value of the purchase thing in advance and in cash. The balance is credited to him and can be paid in small installments extending over half a year or a year.

The system has been a great success and it is expected that there will be a tremendous boom if this new "credit" shopping during Christmas time when everybody needs money or at least presents for his relatives and friends.

Finding Of Ring Recalls Story Of Bob-Haired Pirate

ASBURY PARK, Dec., 10. — A leather shoe solidified in rock out of which protrudes a gold woman's ring with a large pearl and a sliver of gold that may be a bracelet is the queer find of Percival G. Ullman Jr., of 96 Lake avenue reviving a tradition that a woman pirate the original bobbed haired bandit once led a band of buccaneers to ravish this coast.

Ullman found the strange piece on the Asbury park beach today not far from where a blunderbuss also solidified in sea rock was picked up a month ago. The shoe the heel, sole anrd last of which are intact is pressed sidewise in a slab of marble stones and clam shells 18 inches long.

The shoe itself is nearly twelve inches long. An inch from the heel the ring shows plainly the pearl being revealed when Ullman scraped around it with a penknife. A couple of inches from the ring a flat piece of gold also is revealed. The shoe is of a very old type with wooden pegs and thick cord binding the leather layers.

Ullman believes the marl slab may contain other precious gems, but hesitates to open it for fear of uselessly breaking the stone in the event nothing is found within.

Tradition has it that the woman pirate to simulate a man cut her hair and devastated this coast in the pirate period.

Go Bareheaded And You'll Enjoy Health Says Doctor

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 10.—daily fresh air bath "with as much of the skin exposed to the sun as possible" is recommended as a means of maintaining good health by Dr. Charles M. Wharton assistant director of physical education at the University of Pennsylvania.

However Dr. Wharton neglected to amplify his "prescription" by explaining how his directions should be followed, or how the benefits of fresh air bathing can ever be realized under the present code of modesty.

Some of the benefits of fresh air may be obtained he said by going about without wearing a hat and in this connection he praised the modern college youth who refuses to be seen on the street wearing one. He is using good judgement he added.

"The decline of the old-fashioned brown derby in favor of the modern soft hat is a step in the right direction" he declared, "but it would be better if people wore no hats at all. The free course blood pulsing to the brain should not be hindered by wearing headgear; and that means that blood flows freest when it is not hampered.

"The fashion in hats has slowly evolved to the present loose-fitting variety and if fashion keeps evolving until we all walk bareheaded better health will result."

Ask Hero Medal Be Awarded To Conneaut Man

Wm. Augustine Saved Life Of Autoist Wrecked On Bridge

CONNEAUT, O., Dec. 10. — The Ashtabula chamber of commerce has asked the Carnegie hero commission board to suitably reward William Augustine, this city, for having saved the life of Milford Cooper, Ashtabula young man. A Nickel Plate train, on which Augustine was fireman, struck a coupe in which Mr. and Mrs. Cooper and Miss Catherine Watrous were riding Sunday night, November 21. Cooper and the car were carried to the middle of the bridge by the train. Augustine climbed over the engine, grabbed Mr. Cooper, who was dazed, and was endeavoring to get out of the car, which would have meant death to him in a fall of 110 feet. He carried the young man to a place of safety. It is thought that Cooper will pull through safely.

Living Can Provide Bequests After Death

Truth of the saying "Great oaks from little acorns grow" will be demonstrated during the week of December 13, when 10,000 life insurance representatives of the Equitable Life Assurance society will render service to philanthropic, charitable and benevolent organizations.

This will be made possible through the idea of President Edward A. Woods that there are many charitably inclined citizens who would like to have their benevolence carried on after their death, it occurring to Woods that these generous people buy, while living, a life insurance policy, payable directly to their favorite charity. As a result next week will be devoted by the entire organization in promoting this charitable work.

Endowment Is Being Raised

Greenwood Cemetery Fund Is Slowly Reaching Large Proportions

Greenwood cemetery, the city's oldest burial ground, is slowly but surely accumulating an endowment fund which is for the purpose of making it self sustaining when it has reached a point where the income will meet the requirements of the upkeep of the place.

At the meeting of the board of managers held last night in the office of the company the condition of the endowment fund as of December 1, 1926 was announced. The principal, which may never be touched has now reached a total of $13,615 through the careful management of the board of managers and the gifts of those who have an interest in the perpetuation of the burial place of their relatives.

On December 1, 1925, the fund totaled $10,895. The increase in one year has been $2,720.

The fund is the outcome of action of the board of managers about five years, when it was decided that an endowment fund should be started, regardless of the amount that was available for that purpose. In the period of five years the fund has grown from less than a thousand dollars to the present large total.

It is anticipated that in the next few years that through the generosity of those interested in the perpetuation of the cemetery, the fund will grow very rapidly and that the goal of being self-sustaining will be much nearer.

A comparatively small gift from each of the many hundreds of lot owners in the cemetery would make the object of the endowment fund a matter of but a comparatively short time.

Under the provisions by which the fund was created the principal may never be used but the income may be used for the maintenance and perpetuation of the cemetery.

The management of the cemetery is purely a community affair and every cent of revenue goes into the upkeep of the cemetery, except such surplus as is available from time to time and is placed in the endowment fund by the board of managers.

Police Get Reports On Two Accidents

Officer Samuels reported at police headquarters last night that he took a rope and lantern to Crawford avenue and East Main street to rope off the street. He found that the rope was too short to reach from pole to pole and secured permission from John Sanford of 101 South Crawford avenue to tie one end to the porch of his home. He placed a red light on a barrel under the rope. A truck ran into the rope and tore the spouting from the porch of Mr. Sanford.

Charles Williams of King avenue, R. D. No. 2, reported Thursday that he was going west on East North street following the taxicab driven by Clyde Confer, when at East North and North Jefferson streets the taxicab made the main thoroughfare stop. The two cars were in a collision when Mr. Williams started north on North Jefferson street as the taxi started to back.

Three Billion Is Annual Expense Of U. S. Government

(Special To The News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 10.—The annual expenses of the federal government now approximate about $3,000,000,000—a very large sum of money; but some 15 billions less thon 1918. Of this annual budget the three largest items are: $865,000,000 for interest on the public debt; $559,000,000 care of disabled soldiers; $472,000,000 for the sinking fund; $344,000,000 for the army; $338,000,000 for the navy; $217,000,000 for Civil and Spanish war pensions. The balance goes for ordinary expenses of the three branches of the Federal government with the many commissions, bureaus and independent establishments.

The annual expenditures of the federal government now, in peace times, is approximately three times what it was before the World war.

Chautauqua Lake Is Frozen Over

MAYVILLE, N. Y., Dec. 10.—Chautauqua Lake is frozen over its entire length from Mayville to Celeron for the first time this season. There were stretches of open water above Long Point at noon yesterday but these had all disappeared by sunset owing to the declining temperature during the afternoon.

A large flock of ducks were noted flying upward from one of the few pools of open water in the middle of the day evidently realizing that the season for ducks was about to close on Chautauqua Lake.

A Powder You Will Prize

By Edna Wallace Hopper

We stars of the stage and the movies demand the utmost in a powder. Beauty is our stock in trade, and we always look our best. The greatest powder makers in the world supply their best to Hollywood. And they charge their highest prices. For years I paid $5.00 per box for my powder.

Now I have induced those powder makers to supply their best to you. And at ordinary prices. I do this by promising that I will urge all women to employ it. So toilet counters everywhere today offer Edna Wallace Hopper's Face Powders the very kind I use.

This Powder comes in two types. I use a heavy cold cream powder, because it clings and stays. That type costs $1.00 in square box. But the same powder comes in the light and fluffy type, and sells for 50c in round box. Both come in White, Flesh and Brunette shades.

Get a box at your toilet counter today. Learn what exquisite powder means. See what it adds to your appearance. You have probably never used a powder that compares.

Pope's Housekeeper Pensioned; Was Last Woman In Vatican

(International News Service)

By GUGLIELMO EMANUEL

International News Service Staff Correspondent

ROME, Dec. 10.—With the pensioning of Signora Linda Banfi, the seventy year-old housekeeper-governess to Pope Pius, there are now no women living in the Vatican.

Signora Banfi, who had been in the service of the present Pope for many years, has been given a rent free apartment in the Hospice of Saint Martha, near St. Peters, and will receive a pension of sixty-two dollars a month.

Much comment has been caused by the size of her pension, inasmuch as Pope Pius the Tenth's only remaining sister only receives a pension of twenty-two dollars a month.

Vatican household circles state that Signora Banfi, probably through her long associations with the present Pope's household affairs, had been inclined to indiscreetly meddle in the administrative side of the Vatican.

She apparently believed that her sole mission in life was to economize for her master, as she had had to do when he was a simple priest and did not receive the revenue he now has.

She thus created friction among the household staff, with the result that the Pope was compelled to dispense with her and the kitchen civilian staff who have been replaced by five Franciscan brothers.

"She began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Ointment he was healed." (Signed) Miss Luvie Morrison, 48 Valley St., Duncannon, Pa.

TO SUE CHURCH HOME FOR TAXES

SHARON, Pa., Dec. 10.—The city of Sharon will file liens against the Presbyterian Home for Retired Ministers, formerly the Haywood home, East State street, for $969, said to be due as city, county and school taxes for 1925.

The property is owned by the Presbyterian Board of Ministerial Relief and Sustentation of Philadelphia, under provisions of the will of Mrs. Elizabeth Haywood. According to Q. A. Gordon of Mercer, attorney for the board, the home is tax free under the state law governing church properties. City officials hold that the assessment is payable and assert that they have legal judgment that the property is not in the class exempt under the state law.

"Breath Test" Is Latest Indulgence Of Police Officers

(International News Service)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 10.—As the result of complaints that some patrolmen have been indulging in "eye-openers" the night police shift has had added to its routine a new test.

It is a "breath" test.

The men are lined up in the roll call room and the order to "wheeze out," is given. Amid blowing and wheezing Lieutenant Fred Drinkut and Sergeants Reilly, Eisenhut and Dever advance along the lines sniffing the various aromas in search of an alcoholic breath.

Thus far no member of the force has been questioned although it was said that several with red noses are under suspicion.

New Aluminum Trolley Cars For Cleveland

(International News Service)

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 10.—Manned by a veteran conductor and motorman, a streetcar began operation on a local line here this week, which may vitally affect the welfare of every one of the millions of straphangers throughout the nation, as well as the finances of scores of street railway concerns.

The new car No. 1376—the "only one of its kind" in existence—is an experimental craft, with aluminum used throughout its construction in place of steel. An ordinary large size steel streetcar weighs in the neighborhood of 55,000 pounds. The aluminum car weighs about two-thirds as much.

The obvious saving in power and in maintenance, due to less pounding on the tracks, engineers of the Cleveland Railway Co., who designed the new car, believe will more than compensate for the added cost.

The engineering features have been approved by experts, and the test now being conducted, is the final effort to ascertain how the lighter metal will stand up under actual operation conditions.

Eventual replacement of all steel cars with the aluminum type is predicted.

The car cost about $15,000 to construct, and was built entirely in the local shops.

In addition to the new type of construction, the car also has "bucket" type seats, all facing forward, and other luxuries unknown to the ancient side-type vehicles.

Thousands freed from racking pain

HANDS TERRIBLY SWOLLEN FROM RHEUMATISM

Gets relief overnight from simple home treatment

After having suffered with rheumatism for years, and tried all kinds of remedies in vain, a Washington, D. C., woman has at last found a way to get quick, sure relief.

"I have been a sufferer from rheumatism for years," she writes. "At times my hands are terribly swollen. Sloan's Liniment always gives me relief in a very short time. I have tried other liniments, but nothing equals Sloan's."

The marvelous effectiveness of Sloan's is due to its stimulating effect upon the circulation. Straight to the sick, aching tissues, it sends a healing tide of fresh, new blood—clears out rheumatism germs—kills pain.

So pleasant, easy and clean to use, too. You don't even have to rub. Just pat it on gently and you will get immediate results. Get a bottle today. All druggists—35 cents.

Coal Strike Cost Staggers Britain

(International News Service)

LONDON, Dec. 10.—What the coal strike has cost Great Britain is now being slowly and painfully totalled.

According to Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, president of the Board of Trade, in an answer given to the members of the House of Commons, the strike has cost Britain between $1,250,000,000 and $1,500,000,000 in hard cash already.

This does not include losses due to disturbances of trade contracts and orders not secured—an amount which is inestimable—but direct loss caused solely by cessation of work by miners.

Furthermore, in place of an export of more than double the amount, 15,400,000 tons of coal have been imported into Britain between May and October 31st.

Expansion Program For Oil Refinery

OIL CITY, Pa., Dec. 10.—The Pennzoil Company has started an expansion program which, when completed it is said will place Oil City in the lead of Pennsylvania refining centers. Thirteen new stills, all of them of large size, are to be added, including some tube stills which are a new departure in Pennsylvania refining methods.

Much other new equipment is required by the expansion including 18 new pumps, boilers, coal trestle, water works and electric light and power plant. Seventeen new tanks are to be built.

The South Penn Oil Company recently acquired 51 per cent of the stock of the Pennzoil Company.

Will Reorganize British Broadcast

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The long promised reorganization of the British Broadcasting Company, who control all radio broadcasting in Great Britain, is now within sight with the publication of the Royal Charter giving details of the proposed reorganization.

Briefly, radio broadcasting in Britain will become a State owned affair, under the direct supervision of the British Postal authorities.

The Royal charter intimates that the B. B. C. will be bought out for just over $3,000,000, and that control will be vested in five Governors, who include Mrs. Ethel Snowden, wife of the former Chancellor of the Exchequer.

The Earl of Clarendon will be chairman of the Board of Governors with a salary of $15,000 annually.

Under the Charter it will be possible for radio broadcasting in the country to have much wider powers. It is intimated that the sum available for programs, development, and staff will be substantially larger than at present, while special powers for the roping in of additional listeners and their license fee will be conferred.

An important clause gives the Postmaster-General power to confiscate all the stations of the Corporation in the event of a national emergency.

Another clause states that the Postmaster-General may forbid the dissemination of any news or other material that might cause disaffection.

Jury Commissioner Walks To His Work

(International News Service)

MAUCH CHUNK, Pa., Dec. 10.—Hugh McGrorry, jury commissioner of Carbon county, walks to the court house every day in spite of the fact that his age is past three score and ten years.

McGrorry lives at Nesquehoning, across the mountain five miles from here. He says the ten-mile hike daily, to and from his work, keeps him in fine physical condition.

Gambling Wave Sweeps London Social Circles

Continental Games Take Hold Of People, Driving Dancing To Background

International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Dec. 10. — A wave of roulette, chemin-de-fer and baccarat is sweeping over London. Illicit gaming houses are springing up right and left, and invitations to private dinner parties almost invariably involve the various games of hazard associated with the continent. Dancing is rapidly going out of favor, with the result that night clubs like Ciro's close nearly two hours earlier than they did during the summer.

All these are manifestations of the extraordinary craze for absorbing casino life into the solid and old-fashioned circles where bridge, port and waltzing have reigned so long.

West End Clubs.

A number of fashionable gaming rooms have been opened in the West End, where chemin-de-fer, roulette and baccarat are played nightly. These "casinos" never remain in the same place for more than a month, it being their custom to shift their location every 30 days. The proprietors usually provide champagne, whiskey, brandy and sandwiches of ham and caviare for their guests, and the establishments are operated upon standards consistent with the standing of the fashionable clientele.

The strike of the bookmakers following the tax on betting, and after that the extreme shortening of the odds on all race meetings, has given a gigantic impetus to gambling at cards and roulette Few Englishmen, despite their traditional love of horse flesh, go to race meetings in order to look at horses. It is the lure of possibly easy money that attracts them. Now that this is no longer the case, their appetite for gambling is difficult to slake.

The effect on dance clubs and hotels is most marked. Even night clubs which risk police interference by selling liquor out of hours have felt the slump so severely that the last of these establishments, where evening dress was not surprising, as the gaming places provide good drink free instead of bad drink at exhorbitant prices, and there is always the chance of making money in addition.

Coal Strike Blamed.

The opinion in some quarters that the coal strike is responsible for the slump in dancing is not correct. The manager of one of London's best known luxury hotels states, for example, that the strike actually caused more spending of money than usual, as numbers of rich north countrymen came south to kill time and spend money until their businesses were in full working order again.

Another effect of the sudden popularity of spending holidays in the casino towns is the arrival from Paris of the gigolo, a young man paid by otherwise partnerless women to dance; his double-breasted suits, effiminate shoes and manners, can be seen everywhere.

Cocktail parties, too, are becoming more and more into fashion. Their duration, often two hours, fills in the time before the now late dinner hour of nine. Instead of being an aperitif, the cocktail has now acquired all the importance of a social function.

In every way London is seriously adopting all the habits of casino towns, even if the gaiety and lightheartedness of the continent are lacking.

England's Only Airship May Soon Be Dismantled

(International News Service)

LONDON, Dec. 10.—R-33, England's only airship will probably be dismantled and scrapped within the next few weeks.

The ship has been in commission for ten years and is now being used for obtaining data for the two mammoth airships now being built for the England-India airship route.

America is to have a pink elephant, and doubtless this is the last sly effort of the Volstead crowd.

Trout Champion

Photo of Charles E. Davis, 15, of Worcester, Mass., and 17 1-2 pound trout he caught at Hurd Pond, Maine, winning for him the title of "Champion Lake Trout Fisherman of New England." The trout, 24 inches long, was landed without a net.

TIME IS SHORT TO GET LICENSE TAGS FOR 1927

New Castle Motor Club Secretary Warns All Local Auto Owners

According to B. N. Hanlon, secretary of the New Castle Motor Club. "It is thoughtless upon the part of motorists to wait until the last minute before getting his tags."

Good motoring citizenship demands the early procurement of 1927 license tags. Besides furnishing the authorities with a means of identifying the car, the license furnishes the public revenue, and as such should be paid as promptly as the citizen pays his yearly taxes upon his home or upon any other property.

"After all, the car owner surely realizes that he must get his tags sooner or later, and good judgment dictates that they be gotten before the rush at the close of the year. Getting one's automobile tags really is such a small thing that it is conceivable how so many motorists fail to do so until the last few days of the dying year," says Mr. Hanlon.

"It is plain that to purchase the tags before the rush really means a saving because as the time limit grows nearer it becomes increasingly difficult for the distributing office to handle all the applications with facility. Consequently, there are those needless and irritating delays which motorists dread.

The way to avoid these provoking delays is to get your tags early. The longer you wait, the longer the delays and the greater the likelihood of such delays.

Let us remember that the earlier we procure our tags the sooner we have that small but inevitable task off our minds, and the sooner we can forget about this phase of the whole thing for another year.

New Point Bridge Ready January 1

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 10. — Point bridge, Pittsburgh's two million dollar structure spanning the Monongahela river at its juncture with the Allegheny and Ohio rivers, will be completed January 1, engineers in charge announced here today.

The bridge spans the river at a point near the site of the historic Fort Pitt blockhouse, scene of several battles in the early history of the country.

Working from both ends, an army of laborers has carried on the work of erecting the giant cantilever structure, built in a design distinctive among its type.

An unbroken topcord, reaching from one abutment to the other is an outstanding feature of the bridge, designed by the county department of public works to conform in design with a similar bridge over the Allegheny.

The bridge measures 1,120 feet in length and is built 70 feet above the water level. The structure will provide a 38-foot roadway, with 12-foot sidewalks on either side.

Formal dedication of the bridge will take place on Memorial Day, 1927.

Berlin Pedestrians Learn To Step Lively

BERLIN, Dec. 10--Pedestrians in Berlin are learning to be quick on the jump just as their brethren in other countries, particularly since the establishment of a light control system this fall on a number of the city's principal streets.

The more impetuous motorists, chiefly taxi drivers and motorcyclists, have made rapid progress in picking up the tactics of their type in American and other cities where traffic is ruled by light signals, and the start of the waiting line of cars at intersections is frequently on the familiar trigger system.

When the signal changes to green, the line plunges forward, apparently regardless of any pedestrian who may be on the roadway. As a result the lively jumping of foot travelers is getting to be one of the sights of the town.

Things change little. It was religion that caused the second man in the world to kill the third.

Mexico used to think only Texans could fight, but doubtless she has heard of Herrin now.

News Of Activities At Plain Grove School

Activities have been rife at Plain-grove school the past month. Naturally everyone is doing well in order to have a good record when Santa Claus comes.

The high school capped the climax of its literary program Friday with "Dat Famous Chicken Debate. Resolved, That Stealing Chickens Ain't No Crime." The affirmative was gloriously upheld by Rufus Rastus Johnsing (Merle Stone) and Nebuchadnezzer Jones (Herman Donley), while the negative was miraculously sustained by Hezakiah Gitar (Reget Guarnieri) and Ephram Pullemdown (Albert Foster). Professor Snowball White (Frank Thompson), presided. The decision of the judges is still pending.

Saturday night, December 4, found a number of the high school students at the home of Charles Brenneman where the annual oyster supper, given jointly by a boys' class and a girls' class of the Presbyterian church, was being held. According to the consensus of opinion, Alvi Stevenson held the palm in the art of making oysters disappear. The entire evening was uproarious with laughter.

During the past month the percentage of attendance for the high school boys has been 94 per cent with eight on the perfect attendance list, while the girls show a percentage of 98 with 20 on the perfect attendance list. Following is the November record for the grades for perfect attendance: Miss Graham's room, 9 boys, 23 girls; Miss Jack's room, 16 boys, 10 girls; Mr. Klingensmith"s room, 4 boys, 5 girls.

Mr. Klingensmith reports that interest in his room is gaining impetus with the approach of the midterm. Ruth Bingham has succeeded in placing her name on this month's honor roll.

The literary programs for this month have shown more preparation. Items of special note were the two debates one with Gladys Filer and William McCune versus Alta McNulty and Roberta Armstrong, the other with Lillian Patterson and Ruth Bingham versus Rome Dicosimo and Kenneth Martin. The readings by Harold Connel and Evelyn Eppinger deserve particular mention.

On Tuesday night December 7 a surprise party was given Helen Patterson. Nothing was lacking in the way of entertainment—anything from "Up Jiggs" to "Queen Didie" The last game, "Wink" seemed to be a particularly hard one to break away from.

Despite all the above activities Plain Grove air is vibrant with a strange fervor and anticipation. To an outsider it may seem as though preparations are being made to welcome some mystical prodigy, whereas the community is simply preparing to be amused on Thursday and Friday nights December 16 and 17 to within an inch of infinitude. When they depart from the auditorium of the United Presbyterian church they will know that is was "All a Mistake"—one of the snappiest litle three act comedies that ever struck the stage. And this is not all. Prof. Hill a member of the high school faculty and a past-master at the art of "tickling the ivories" will entertain between acts

The play is being whipped into splendid shape. Following is the cast:

Captain Obadiah Skinner an Old Fighter—Kenneth McCommon.

Lieutenant George Richmond, A Snappy Young Warrior—Harry Sankey.

Mr. Richard Hamilton, A Gentleman Farmer—Gaylord Shaw.

Mrs. Nellie Richmond, George's Wife—Margaret Montgomery.

Miss Nellie Huntington, A Friend of the Richmonds—Agnes Brenneman.

Cornelia, Obadiah's Sister, who Pines for her "Romeo"—Helen Patterson.

Nellie, "Just plain Nell"—Pearl Graham.

Ten-Year-Old Hero

Lucius Moran, 10, Ponca City, Okla., modestly sits for his picture while townfolk tell of his saving of Calibee Feaster, five-year-old cousin, from a speeding locomotive. Accompanied by "Doodle," dog pet, Lucius was giving his cousin a ride in his little red wagon, when the wheels caught in a railroad track before an onrushing train. The rescue was made as the wagon was splintered to pieces.

Senator McKinley Funeral Services Conducted Today

(International News Service)

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Dec. 10.—Senator William B. McKinley, veteran Republican lawmaker, was laid to rest today with services striking in their simplicity.

The funeral was in keeping with the expressed wishes of the kindly little man whose later years were spent in giving away a great part of the fortune he acquired in public utility enterprises.

Services were held in the First Presbyterian church and interment was in Mt. Hope cemetery, overshadowed by the giant athletic stadium of the University of Illinois, which institution benefitted liberally from McKinley's philanthropies.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER ARE BADLY BURNED

(International News Service)

ERIE, Pa., Dec. 10.—Mrs. Antonio Jarmalowiez, living near here, was severely burned and her two-year-old daughter, Frances, probably fatally burned when kerosene which the husband and father had poured upon a fire in their home today exploded and enveloped the mother and child in flames. Mrs. Jarmolowiez was holding her baby near the kitchen stove as the husband poured the oil on the ignited wood.

The husband escaped with minor burns.

(Special To The News)

GROVE CITY, Pa., Dec. 10.—The winter meeting of the Accredited Cattle Association with headquarters here will take place on December 15. It will be held in the Commercial club both morning and afternoon. The program of this year is sufficiently attractive to insure the attendance of the larger percentage of the members.

Dr. J. M. Buck of the U. S. bureau of animal industry at Washington will discuss at 10:30 a. m. such phases of livestock breeding as has been derived by him from many years of research.

Head of the U. S. department of agriculture at Washington, Prof. J. R. Dawson will speak on the economy of legumes and silage feeding at the afternoon session, which begins at 1 o'clock.

Prof. Nickolas Schmitz of the extension bureau of the state at State college is carded for an address at 2 p. m. which deals with the growing of feeds for dairy cattle. The meeting will be for the three breed associations in the community—Jersey, Guernsey and Holstein.

Peoria Officials Probe Finding Of Mutilated Baby

(International News Service)

PEORIA, Ill., Dec. 10.—Coroner A. E. Allen of Tazewell county, aided by East Peoria police, today is investigating the circumstances surrounding the death of a ten months' old babe, whose body, badly mutilated, was found last night in the yard of an East Peoria resident.

The body of the infant was discovered by a neighbor when it was noticed that a number of dogs were gnawing the body. Further investigation disclosed that the dogs had almost completely devoured the body.

Give Boys Job Of Moving Dead Cats

WATERBURY, Conn., Dec. 10.—The cat and dog mortality under the wheels of automobiles here is raising the city's undertaking bills to such an extent that street urchins aid has been enlisted.

Removal of a dead cat pays the young undertaker $1. For a dead dog it is $2. This is said by the city authorities to be an economical move since the health department could hardly move its men to the scene of the killing for that price.

COULDN'T COUNT AT 25,000 FEET

DAYTON, O., Dec. 10.—Capt. Charles T. C. Buckner, U. S. A., who recently made an altitude test without an oxygen mask, has established that human beings cannot function beyond an altitude of 25,000 feet above the earth, it was announced by officials at Wilbur Wright field here.

Capt. Buckner flew to 28,000 feet, but after he attained 25,000 feet he lost the ability to count correctly and became so weak every movement was accomplished only by extreme effort.

C. C. Perry of the engineering department accompanied Capt. Buckner. Both suffered from the intense cold.

The tests are to be continued, it was announced by field officials.

Hays Sees Movies As Aid To Surgeons Teaching Medicine

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 10.—The motion picture is another great instrument placed in the service bag of the doctor, Will H. Hays, head of the movie industry, told surgeons and motion picture experts gathered here for a conference on the possibility of developing the movies for use in the fields of medicine and surgery.

Hays suggested that the motion picture can preserve for future generations of medical men the technique and operative skill of eminent surgeons of the day. He also pointed to the possibility of assisting doctors to teach the world the value of health and thus develop a stronger race of men.

Rural Electric Problem Comes Before State

Commission To Consider Problem At Meeting On December 17

(From News Bureau, State Capital)

HARRISBURG, Dec. 10.—Solution of the rural electric problem which has confronted the public service commission for the last several years is seen in the petition of the Pennsylvania State Council of Farm Organizations and the Pennsylvania Electric Association. These two contending groups have gotten together and drafted a proposed agreement whereby the tangle over rural extensions may be worked out satisfactorily for both sides.

The commission will hold a hearing on December 17 when the petition of the farm group and the power companies will come up for approval. This is taken by those on Capitol Hill who have followed the rural electric question as being the best possible solution.

Under the terms of the petition extensions will be made by the companies to any farmer agreeing to pay the minimum charge for current. This charge will be based on a return on the construction costs plus allowances for depreciation.

Officials of electric companies in the past have claimed that the farmers did not desire to have electric lines run to their farms and pay a fair return to the companies for making the extensions. The electric officials claimed that the farmer wanted the city consumer to "pay the freight" by having lower rates granted the agricultural consumer. If the commission agrees to the petition, and it is felt sure that it will be approved, farmers wanting current and who are willing to pay the costs will be given electricity.

Express Sympathy To Leathers' Family

At a meeting of the third ward volunteer fire department, held December 6, a resolution of sympathy was presented and unanimously adopted and forwarded to the family of the late Thomas M. Leathers. He was a member of the department.

The resolution follows:

WHEREAS: It has pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst one of our most loved and faithful members, Thomas M. Leathers;

Be It Therefore Resolved: That we tender his family our heartfelt sympathy and commend them to the all-wise Ruler in whose mysterious dispensations we may some time understand and to whom we must all turn in times of deep sorrow and tribulation for help and consolation.

We have known our brother for many years as a faithful member of our department, a loving husband and a kind father, and we deeply mourn his loss.

Here's Yankee Soldier In Santa Claus Land

(Special To The News)

NOME, Alaska, Dec. 10. — To be United States Commissioner, postmaster, chairman of the school board, commanding officer of a garrison, leading citizen, and to occupy the best house in the town all rolled into one constitutes a formidable role for one man. Yet that is the position of Private Elmer J. Ulen, signal corps, United States Army, who as the army's single local representative operates the signal corps' radio station at Wiseman, Alaska.

Wiseman lies far above the Arctic Circle, almost in the shadow of the north pole, where the Aurora Borealis provides the street lighting system and the vari-colored advertisements for approximately nine months of the year, and is, for all practicable purposes, the most northern point to which civilization has penetrated. There the signal corps has established a radio station in order that the few pioneers who choose to live in igloos may keep contact with the outside world. A regular schedule of communications is maintained.

Prior to the establishment of this military radio station, Wiseman and its inhabitants were completely cut off from civilization for nine months each year, during which time it is impossible to reach the settlement even with dog teams. Now, however, these residents of the polar regions may tune in on San Francisco and other large western cities and pass away the long winter evening from about September to May along with the same class of entertainment and up-to-the-minute news enjoyed by those who are within hailing distance of Broadway. Naturally they are disposed to heap honors upon Private Ulen, the link connecting them with the outside world and making their entertainment possible.

German Swimmers Say Vierkoetter Is Not Amateur

(International News Service)

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—Ernst Vierkoetter's amateurship has been questioned by the German Swimmer's League as a result of his competing with Gertrude Ederle in a swim in the Pacific. The league decreed that "channel swimming and other endurance tests of a similar kind are to be considered professional feats, having nothing whatever to do with amateur swimming."

The decree of the League is greatly resented by a large sporting community. It is being pointed out that the German Channel swimmer, through his record swim, gained not only personal reputation but spread the name and the fame of German swimming all over the world. It is generally expected that the German Swimmers League will withdraw its decree and will continue to recognize Vierkoetter's amateurship.

Keep Sidewalks Clear Of Snow Police Warning

Ouce more the police department comes forward with its annual plea to the property owners of the city to keep their sidewalks in a passable condition in such weather as now prevails.

While the police can enforce this regulation of the city at the expense of the property owners it is not the desire to cause any person inconvenience and it is believed that the property owners should see to the cleaning of the sidewalks for their own convenience as well as others.

There have been many instances in which people have fallen and been injured on icy and snow covered sidewalks and have asked for damages that it is felt that simply the suggestion that the property owners get busy for their own protection will be sufficient.

Seattle Merchants Want "Christmas" To Be Written Out

(International News Service)

SEATTLE, Dec. 10—A resolution calling for the writing in full of the word "Christmas" was passed recently by more than 100 large downtown retailers at a meeting of the executive committee of the retail trade bureau of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce.

The resolution states that "the executive committee of the retail trade bureau, representing the entire membership is of the unanimous opinion that the word 'Christmas,' insofar as retail stores are concerned, will always be written in full, and that under no condition will the word 'Xmas' be used in any advertising or signs, or on shipments made by the membership."

Turks Open Up Casino To Get American Trade

(International News Service)

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 10. — Hoping to attract the custom of American and European millionaires away from Monte Carlo, the Turkish authorities opened the Yildiz Kiosk in the former Palace of the Sultans as a casino.

Unfortunately these rich tourists have not yet put in an appearance, and in the meantime the "locals" are losing all their money at roulette and baccarat.

Several wealthy merchants have either committed suicide or gone into bankruptcy, and the gambling fever has obtained such a hold on the populace that the authorities are pondering ways and means of prohibiting Turkish citizens from visiting the casino.

$100,000 Record Price For Rug Of A Sultan

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—One hundred thousand dollars—said to be the highest price paid for a rug—was paid by Parish Watson for a rug found among the effects of Sultan Abdul Aziz of Turkey. The rug, more than 400 years old, was described at the auction as "presumably a gift from the emperor of the Persians to the emperor of Turkey".

The background of the rug is a pattern of moss-green creepers on a green so dark that it is almost black. The parent stems are orange, outlined in red. Deer, gazelles, sheep and goats, pursued by lions and leopards, are scattered through the vines. In the center is a rose crimson medallion with vine traceries in pink and silver around four hawk-like birds.

MESTREZAT LEAVES $195,000 ESTATE IN MANY BEQUESTS

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Dec. 10.—Charles A. Mestrezat, prominent retired business man of this place, who died last month, disposed of an estate of $195,000, in his will which has been filed for probate. Charles A. Mestrezat of Waynesburg, an adopted son, is willed $35,000 outright, with income from a trust fund of $40,000. A bequest by Mestrezat of $25,000 to his wife, the late Mary Montgomery Mestrezat, fails because of her death prior to his, and the amount goes into the residue.

Other bequests include a trust fund of $5,000, the income to go to two nieces, Mary and Caroline Hudson, and $250 to the Mapletown Methodist Episcopal church, of which he was a member. The residue is to be divided equally between Mrs. Mary Mestrezat and Charles Mestrezat, Jr., but Mrs. Mestrezat's half goes back into the estate.

Fall-Doheny Case Is About Ready For Jury

Expect All Testimony In Oil Scandal Suit To Be Concluded Today

JURY WILL BE OUT NEXT WEEK

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—With one final flare of pyrotechnics, the Fall-Doheny conspiracy case probably will close today, opposing counsel will begin their final summations and the fate of the two elderly defendants will be in the hands of the "locked-up" jury by Monday or Tuesday of next week.

The one remaining feature, aside from the arguments, will come this morning when E. L. Doheny, undergoes a prolonged cross-examination at the hands of Owen J. Roberts, special government oil counsel.

Fall will not take the witness stand. The defense will sink or swim with the impression the Doheny family has made. His counsel has partially decided not to put any character witnesses on for the former cabinet officer. They contend his public record speaks for itself.

With the cross-examination of Doheny out of the way, Frank Hogan, chief defense counsel, will call Secretary of the Navy Wilbur and demand to know why he "gagged" Captain J. K. Robison when the latter wanted to tell of the Japanese "war scare" report of 1921, which, the defense claims, prompted Doheny's contract at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. Then, after three other minor witnesses, he will close.

Oil Blast Rocks Town, One Man Is Severely Burned

Everett, Massachusetts, Rocked By Oil Explosions Today

(International News Service)

EVERETT, Mass., Dec. 10—With a roar that could be heard all over the city, an explosion in the Beacon Oil works early today tore the roof off the power plant and sent flames shooting into the sky, while the streams of glazing oil poured out from eight huge tanks.

One worker, John Anderson, was picked up bodily by a second explosion and hurled 40 feet to a spot where he became a target for one of the oil torrents, and was badly burned. Eight other workmen in different parts of the plant fled for their lives before the streams of flaming oil that poured out in every direction.

Hardly had terrified residents been roused from their sleep when the second blast shook the city, as fire, caused by the first explosion, reached still other tanks of oil.

DINNER STORIES

She was applying for a position as stenographer, and he questioned her thus:

"Chew gum?"

"No, sir."

"Spell cat and dog and such words correctly?"

"Yes, sir."

"Get here on time and work while you are here?"

"Yes, sir."

Then she began:

"Smoke bad tobacco while you're dictating?"

"Why, no."

"Take it out on your office force when you have a row at home?"

"Why certainly not."

"Know enough English grammar and spelling to appreciate a good letter when it's written for you?"

"Why—er—I think so."

"Want me to go to work, or is your time so—"

But he interrupted her eagerly:

"Say, there's a locker there for your wraps. Hang them up and let's get busy at these letters."

A negro order in Georgia borrowed the name and insignia of a popular white lodge without asking permission. The white fraternity promptly went into court with a restraining order. The issue was carried on appeal to the highest court of the state, where the attorney for the plaintiffs appeared to ask that the injunction be made permanent. He was addressing the full bench.

"Why, if your honor pleases," he stated excitedly, "these negroes got our pass words, our hailing signs, our secret work, our badges, our emblems."

The chief justice leaned forward with a smile upon his face.

"It would appear," he said, "that they also got your goat."

Coming To New Castle For Concert On Evening Of December 14

The choir is composed of 16 artists, each one of whom is a soloist but the ensemble obtained with the combining of their voices but adds to their individual ability.

The young ladies sing part of their program attired in Welsh costume, a pleasing touch to a splendid program. The choir is under the direction of Mlle. Gertrude Gronow with Miss Olive Gifford L. G. S. M., M. I. S. M. at the piano.

The repertoire of the choir is a varied one and contains a wonderful selection of songs both in English and Welsh.

Notre Dame To Build Student Dining Hall

(International News Service)

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 10.—Plans are under way for the building of a huge dining hall for Notre Dame University, accommodating 2,000 students.

The hall will be located south of the main campus, facing north along the road that joins Notre Dame avenue with the Dixie Highway. In exterior dimensions the building will be 232 by 205 feet.

The kitchen of the new dining hall will be the most modernly equipped in the Middle West, it was said. Everything from potato peelers to dish-washing machines will be electrically operated. White glazed tiles will be used on the floor. A large monilar roof will provide light and ventilation for the kitchen.

The dining rooms will be 220 by 62 feet and 30 feet high. The floors will be of terrazzo and the walls covered with sound-deadening plaster. At each end of the rooms will be huge fireplaces.

Wolf Terror In Minnesota Slain

(International News Service)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 10—Old Three Legs is dead.

The carcass of the giant wolf who terrorized numerous calves and chickens, and for years defying all efforts to slay him, has been brought to Minneapolis for mounting by Jennes Richardson, taxidermist.

The big wolf, measuring seven feet from tip to tip, and having a four-inch footprint, was slain by Fred L. Darkow, champion rifleman of Mahnomen county.

Terrorized residents of northern Minnesota named the wolf "Old Three Legs" after he chewed off one foot and escaped when caught in a steel trap.

The carcass of Old Three Legs attracted the attention of several thousand people here where he has been on exhibition.

WOMAN, 99, SAYS "GIRLS DON'T SMOKE"

STANHOPE, N. J., Dec. 10—Mrs. Clarisse Case, who celebrated her 99th birthday yesterday, predicts a short life for the girls who smoke and drink.

"Do I smoke? I did once. I smoked a clay pipe for a toothache and got so sick I forgot about the toothache." Mrs. Case was the youngest of ten children and is the only survivor. "You've got to work hard if you want to live long and stay healthy," she says. Her mother and her sister each lived to be 98 years old.

Gossip of Staff Correspondents at World Centers of Population

Moscow Courts Are Kept Busy

Figures Show That One-Fourth Population Of Moscow Enters Court Each Year

ARGUE OVER LODGING ROOMS

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

MOSCOW, Dec. 10.—Five hundred thousand persons or one-fourth of the total population of Moscow, go to court each year in order to settle quarrels over lodgings. These statistics, proceeding from official court records, proceeding from official court records, show that squabbling over a room is the principal industry of the capital of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

They give a meager idea, however, of the human tragedy and comedy that find a stage in the theaters of the Moscow Peoples Courts. Jacob Yakubovski, appealing to justice to recover his room, unfolded a matchless little five-act drama.

Jacob lifted the curtain on his home as it was two months ago. He and his wife lived, worked, ate, slept in one room, a former kitchen. A friend drops in from Odessa. Jacob puts him up for the night, but before the friend goes off to sleep Jacob learns that eight more persons, relatives of his friend, are on their way from Odessa and expect to share the room. Curtain drops on gloomy prospect.

Second act: The eight relatives arrive from Odessa. They all bed down in the room, built for a kitchen, now serves as barracks for eleven souls. The friends are grateful for the lodgings, but they must find the wherewithal to live, so they set to work, despite the crowded quarters, to manufacture ink in the kitchen. Curtain drops on thick fog of ink fumes.

Third act: Jacob, none too well at best, contracts tuberculosis, brought on by breathing ink fumes, sinks rapidly. Curtain drops on Jacob departing on a stretcher for the hospital.

Fourth act: Physicians assemble at Jacob's bedside and give him up for lost. A hasty hospital clerk fills out Jacob's death certificate and sends it to Jacob's wife, who, weeping bitterly, reports it to the "House Committee." The "House Committee" strikes the name of Jacob off the list of lodgers. Curtain drops on restrained joy of "House Committee" at having an extra bed.

Fifth act: Jacob cheats death, clings to life in spite of ink and friends from Odessa, recovers, returns home, and finds himself excluded from his room. "You are dead," shouts the "House Committee" at the miserable Lazarus. "You can't have a room." Curtain drops on Jacob, one among five hundred thousand, rushing off to court.

Jacobs' case was exceptional. Not every House Committee has the excuse for expelling a tenant that they thought him dead. But the picture of Jacob's room jammed eleven persons is no rarity in Moscow. Only by observation of such rooms can it be understood how the thousands who come to Moscow monthly manage to be absorbed.

Every year the Moscow authorities declare that the housing situation has become unbearable, and everyone is convinced that it cannot grow worse. But every year it grows worse.

Every year the Moscow authorities announce a rosy plan for building houses, enough, they always declare, to take care of at least one year's growth of population. But every year the plan fails for lack of money, and though a few houses are built, they never suffice to accommodate even one year's growth, much less the whole surplus population.

For 1927 the Moscow Soviet has worked out a project for erecting buildings to house 50,000 persons at a cost of $75,000,000. According to the plan, private persons will erect but one-seventh of the total.

Moscow may lack many things, but it never lacks plans. The City Plan Commission has elaborated a map of Great Moscow, which, if realized, would make this city the largest in the world. The plan contemplates a city area of 900 square miles, compared with the 700 square miles of London and the 300 square miles of New York. It proposes the building of a subway, and, characteristically, announces, "We will give the contract for building a subway to the firm of foreign contractors which gives us the most credit."

"By 1940," declare the Moscow city boosters, "Moscow will be bigger than London, more modern than New York, and more beautiful than Paris."

Meanwhile Jacob Yakubovitch is looking for a room.

Football Team And Guests Dine At Hillside On Thursday

ENTHUSIASM FOR COLLEGE SHOWN

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON Pa., Dec. 10.—Witty stories, toasts and sincere touches of seriousness here and there marked the annual grid banquet at Westminster college on Thursday evening in honor of players, coaches, team physicians, student managers, cheer leaders and special guests. President W. C. Wallace and the athletic council were hosts. The gathering took place in the dining room of the Hillside dormitory with dinner being served at 7:30.

Every person in attendance, about 60 in all, was and is an important member of the Westminster college family and of especial importance to that phase of college activity that adds much of the glamor and tradition, namely football.

There was no stress placed on the success or failure of the eleven during the past fall or an overemphasis on the possibilities for the 1927 campaign Characterizing the assemblage was that feeling of genuine co-operation of all departments of the college, that important yet intangible thing which leads to success or failure in no matter what the undertaking. Such criteria as manifested leads one to believe that the future holds sunshine for Westminster in the world of football.

McCrory Presides.

In the absence of Attorney Roy Neville of Sharon, president of the athletic council, who missed his first football banquet in years because of the press of duties, W. B. McCrory of Pittsburgh, a member of the athletic council presided and after a few introductory remarks, introduced President W. Charles Wallace as the toastmaster of the evening.

The first speaker called was Paul Montgomery of New Castle, captain of the Blue and White eleven during the past season who has completed his collegiate football. "Monty" as he is popularly known by his school mates, reviewed the season briefly. He congratulated the athletic council on their selection of Beede as head coach and congratulated the letter men of the squad for their selection of James Lauder of Elizabeth as captain-elect.

Capt. Lauder was then called. "Jimmy" proved to be a very capable speech-maker. In a few well chosen words he thanked the members of the squad for the honor bestowed on him and promised to do his best to maintain the standard of captaincy displayed by Montgomery during the past season.

Head Coach Beede showed himself to be more than a promising young coach for the manner in which he handled his assignment as speaker, stamped him as a proficient after-dinner performer. Beede summed up the past season by saying: "In my mind the campaign was a question mark. Neither a success nor a failure.". His statement summed up the opinion of most Westminsterites.

Beede thanked the college and athletic council for their hearty co-operation during the season. In reviewing the results he cited the Bethany contest as the outstanding performance of the season. In this game Westminster held the Bisons to a 7-7 tie. In the first few minutes of play Bethany was favored by a fumbled punt which resulted in a score, only to have Westminster come back and more than hold their own. He spoke highly of the abilities of Capt. Paul Montgomery of New Castle, Harold Coles of Homestead and James McLean of Turtle Creek, the three leter men who are lost by graduation.

In closing his remarks Beede cautioned against building air castles in regards next year. His warnings were pased on the danger that several men may be unable to return to school and that if the material is considerably improved other teams will devote more time to priming for Westminster.

Peppy talks were given by Physical Director J. W. Coleman and Graduate Manager of Athletics A. A. McDonald. Both commended the players for their fighting spirit and spoke encouragingly of the outlook for the 1927 season.

Dr. Wallace closed the program with a short address in which he strongly expressed the feeling of confidence which Westminster has in its coaches, Dwight Beede and John Lawther. He introduced the example of "Tus" McLaughry former Westminster player and coach who enjoyed such phenomenal success at the helm of the undefeated Brown eleven the past season as concerns what can be done with clean living. His remarks were timely and brough to a close the banquet which officially ended the 1926 grid campaign for Westminster.

Members of the college faculty present were Dr. Charles Freeman, Dr. R. J. Love who delivered the invocation; Prof. C. W. McKee and Prof. J. George Lutz. Howell T. Getty of the athletic council was present as were Drs. Smyzer, Hugh Hart and Calhoun, team physicians.

Famous Absinthe House Padlocked

The Old Absinthe House, New Orleans, has been ordered padlocked by U. S. District Judge Louis Henry Burns. For more than a century it has been the scene of some of the most colorful and romantic history in America. Photo shows the building and the absinthe fountain of black and white marble, crowned with a sculpture, "The Slave Girl," around which many fatal quarrels were begun.

While zealously fighting a blaze the volunteer fire department of Bulkington, England, drained the village pond and left the fish floundering in the mud.

Farmer And Wife Slain, Officials Search For Slayer

Farm Employe Kills Man And Wife And Kidnaps Daughter

(International News Service)

NEW BLOOMFIELD, Pa., Dec. 10.—Perry county authorities and state police today searched this vicinity for Paul Sheaffer, 30 wanted for the slaying of George D. Shull, 60, a farmer and the latter's wife, Ella, 54.

Searchers found Shull's beaten and bruised body beneath a corn shock in a field where he and Sheaffer, an employe on the Shull farm, had gone to work. The slayer beat Mrs. Shull to death with a heavy club in the farm house while her daughter, Mrs. Lester Kell, looked on, helpless to interfere.

Sheaffer then escaped in an automobile, taking Mrs. Kell with him, state police said. The woman escaped when her captor got out of the car to repair the motor, near Harrisburg.

Police said Sheaffer had demanded money of the farmer and his wife, which, they refused to give him.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS
BY MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

People will have birthdays in December right around Christmas, when time is at a premium and everyone's money planned for Christmas gifts. And it is really quite a tragedy and not at all the birthday one's fault, you know. Let us take time from our Christmas plans to give them a happy birthday and a special cake, not make the fruit cake do. Young people especially like chocolate cake. Here is a recipe that is reliable and makes a delicious cake. And following is a simple but good menu that ought to satisfy the appetite and dignity of the "birthday child", whether young or old. It is planned to make as little work as possible but still be a "party" meal.

Halved Grapefruit with Cherry
Pork Chops with Rice and Tomato
Corn Pudding Hot Rolls
Lettuce with Thousand Island Dressing
Devil's Food Cake
Ice Cream Coffee

TODAY'S RECIPES

Grapefruits—Prepare several hours before serving. Cut them in half, remove core and seeds, loosen sections, fill space with sugar and chill. When ready to serve add two or three maraschino cherries and a tablespoon of the liquid.

Pork Chops—Lay as many pork chops in a greased pan as you need. On each chop put one tablespoon uncooked rice, one slice onion, one ring of green pepper, one spoonful tomato, season, add tomato juice or water and bake for three hours.

Devil's Food Cake—Yolk of one egg, one-half cup milk, one-half cup cocoa, cook until thick, cool. Add to one and one-half cups sugar, one-half cup butter, two eggs, one-half cup milk, two cups of flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon soda melted in a little hot water. A boiled frosting with marshmallows, or a fudge frosting are to cover it and the candles in tiny holders, of course. The boiled frosting calls for one cup granulated sugar, one-half cup water, cook until it spins a long, fine thread, then pour into the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Drop fresh marshmallows in as you beat it until you have used a dozen. For the fudge frosting, take one-half cup unsweetened cocoa, one and one-fourth cups confectioners sugar, one-third teaspoon salt, blend together. Put one-fourth cup milk on the fire with one and one-half tablespoons butter. Heat to boiling point and gradually stir in cocoa and sugar. Cook until it forms a soft ball in cold water. It may be cooked in double boiler to prevent burning. Remove from fire, beat thoroughly, add one teaspoon vanilla and one-half cup chopped nut meats. Three eggs will do for the cake if you use the white of the one you used in the cocoa mixture and "steal" another from the cake recipe.

A NECESSARY OFFICE WELL FILLED.

While New Castle people generally may be indifferent as to whether or not we shall have the services of a woman police officer in our city, Mayor Dunlap, who is responsible for the work of the police department, states that the large number of cases which from their very nature must be handled by a woman, make such an officer indispensable to this department. Also that Mrs. McKibben through her capacity for work and her humanity in dealing with arrested women and with young girls in need of help and direction has won the respect of her chief and fellow officers.

One of the notable accomplishments of Mrs. McKibben has been the cleaning up of the public dance. Two years ago, Mrs. McKibben says liquor was often found at these assemblies. Now that has been changed and other evils such as the attendance of very young girls and improper forms of dancing have been eliminated.

Mrs. McKibben is no friend of the cigarette for women and is very proud of the fact that New Castle girls do not smoke in public. What they do in private social affairs she cannot say but it is a rare thing to see a girl smoke in a public place.

Dancing, Mrs. McKibben says, is not nearly so popular in New Castle this year as it has been for several years past. When asked how she accounts for this she declared herself unable to say unless the movies answer the question. They are always crowded after night.

Mrs. McKibben's experiences have convinced her that there is great need in New Castle of a home for homeless children and stranded girls. It is surprising she says how many children are left homeless through the death of the mother or the worthlessness of either or both parents or the breaking up of the home through the separation of husband and wife. Then, there are many girls in New Castle working for $12 to $15 a week who cannot possibly live on that amount when they have to pay board. When asked if the Quota Club home is not designed to meet just such cases she said "Yes, but that will not provide for the children and the Margaret Henry Home is not large enough to take care of all of them."

Mrs. McKibben can tell many true stories showing how difficult it becomes for a girl to travel in the straight and narrow way when through force of circumstances she is left without a roof over her head or food to eat, and how she, herself, often raises the money to give temporary relief.

The office of police woman was created in response to a petition presented to Council by the Federation of Women's Clubs. Might there not be a possibility that further good might be accomplished by this organization through cooperation with our police woman?

Piano Tax In Paris Heavy

(International News Service)

PARIS, Dec. 10.—Paris municipal piano tax yielded almost five million francs in 1926 on 132,107 instruments taxed.

In the future the pianos of those who earn their livings by playing the piano and instructing will be exempt from taxation. The municipal council is considering the possibility of taxing loud speakers to make up this deficit.

British Engineers Win Victory Over German Builders

(International News Service)

LONDON, Dec. 10.—A victory for British over German engineering is claimed as the result of the concession to a British group for the construction of a tube railroad in Buenos Aires. Over $50,000,000 will be expended in Britain for materials alone.

Not for fifteen years has such an engineering concession been secured in South America by British industries. It came as result of terrific contest between those engaged in the British electrical industry and German and other industries in South America.

During the past twenty years, German interests have secured almost a monopoly of electric light, power and tramway operations in South America, while other big German concerns have secured huge contracts for various public works.

This has largely been the result of the active assistance of German banks, who have supported the manufacturers throughout, while British industrialists have hitherto relied on individual efforts. On the present occasion the British interests made a concerted drive and it is stated that the people of Buenos Aires are enthusiastic of the plans submitted to them.

Royal Family To Hold Reunion At Sandringham

By F. A. WRAY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

SANDRINGHAM, Norfolk, Eng., Dec. 10.—This will be one of the happiest Christmases that the British royal family have ever known. The entire family will be re-united for the first time for years past.

Prince George, the sailor boy, will be back home from China in time for Christmas. Prince Henry, the soldier, recovered from his operation for removal of tonsils, will arrange the amusements program. Princess Mary and her two sons, together with Lord Lascelles, will also be present.

The king and queen of Norway, with their son, Prince Olaf, will be at Appleton house, not far from Sandringham. They will join the party daily, and there will be hunting during the daytime and dances in the evenings.

Incidentally, the Prince of Wales who is organizing some of the festivities, has declared that he will not attend any more public charity balls. The trouble is that many people think because they pay a few pounds for a ticket they are entitled to buzz like a swarm of bees around the prince and his partner.

Among the things that make life drab and dreary are unrequited love and having once been a football hero.

It must be nice to be a king in a land where somebody else is important enough to be the target.

Coal Stoppage Brought Loss To British Trade

Industrial Chaos Due To Strike Makes Disaster For Trade Unions

Entire Population Shares Suffering On Account Of Nationwide Confusion

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Out of the industrial chaos caused by the British coal stoppage, there is slowly arising the concrete fact that it has been the most disastrous dispute financially in British, and probably world, history.

In the words of Sir William Joynson Hicks, the Secretary of the Home Department, the stoppage has very nearly ruined England.

Economists are agreed that its efforts will weigh on every man, woman and child in Britain for years; that the standard of living will be lowered for possibly two generation; that taxation will have to be increased to meet the appalling cost to the State; and that trade unionism, as at present identified in England, has been set back fifty years.

Trade Unions Poor

The dispute has impoverished powerful trade unions, increased unemployment, crippled many businesses, and potently revealed the utter futility of industrial warfare. In addition it has directly affected the country as a whole financially to the extent of at least two billion dollars, or three-quarters of a billion dollars more than the direct financial cost of the Boer War to England. The indirect loss may never be known, in the opinion of economists.

Figures compiled by the Right Hon. William Graham, financial secretary to the British Treasury during the Labor Administration, and Professor A. L. Bowley, of the London School of Economics, adequately reveal how much the country, capital, and even Labor have lost through the stoppage.

Taking the big unions, it is shown that the National Union of Railwaymen, the second largest and formerly the wealthiest trade union in England, has lost $15,000,000 through the strike, while many of its members are unemployed or working on short time.

The Transport Worker's Union is shown to have suffered a net loss of $7,500,000, and the Boilermaker's Society $865,000. The smaller unions are shown to have suffered proportionately.

Miners' Losses

These two authorities show, under the losses suffered by Labor heading, that the miners have lost $375,000,000 in wages over the stoppage, that other workers have lost $150,000,000 in wages, that the miners lost 141,000,000 working days, and that the total number of workers put out of work by the stoppage, not inclusive of miners, was 351,578.

Coming to the losses suffered by the nation and capital, it is shown that the British coal output, as compared with 1925, has been reduced in value by $480,000,000, that losses suffered by iron and steel producing firms total $175,000,000, shipping $50,000,000, and the railroads $129,915,000.

The Government and private concerns have had to pay approximately $90,000,000 more for the 14,000,000 tons of foreign coal imported into England during the strike than they would have done for English coal. In addition the Government had to foot the bill for the colossal organization created during the General Strike.

Many proposals are now afoot for preventing a recurrence of the strife through which England has passed, and the unions and the country will be so impoverished that such a happening will be impossible for several years to come.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Dec. 10.—Miss Ethel P. Thatcher, local milliner for many years, made a fortune in trimming hats, it was revealed when her will was filed for probate before Surrogate Warner S. Rexford at the city hall. Miss Thatcher left an estate valued at $43,700.

Dental Decay Modern, Indian Teeth Reveal

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Studies at Columbia University of teeth nearly 900 years old indicated that tooth decay is due to modern food and not degenerating dental tissue.

These teeth, found in New Mexico and presented to Columbia by Dr. A. B. Kidder archeologist of Andover, Mass., reveal that tooth structure in the savage was little different than it is today according to a research report made public today by Dr. Charles F. Bodecker of the School Dentistry.

An examination of about 35,000 young adults in which Dr. Bodecker took part showed that only 27 had practically perfect teeth. Study of the teeth of the ancient New Mexico Indians led them to the conclusion that tooth decay was practically unknown among them. The Indian teeth showedt by abrasions that coarse food had kept them scoured.

Blind Cotton Picker Wins Campaign For Texas Tax Collector

WEATHERFORD, Tex., Dec. 10.—Blind 12 years, Dan Carroll, 41 years old, has left west Texas cotton fields where he has picked a daily average of 200 pounds, and is preparing to take the office of Parker county tax collector here January 1.

With assistance of his wife and his 14-year-old son, Carroll made his campaign without speeches, because of his affliction, and was returned winner over Clyde Boley, incumbent. That was in August. When cotton harvest began Carroll took his family to the fields, where he groped his way with sensitive fingers that left but few loose strands for a child to pick behind him.

Police Chief Warns About Solicitors

Now is the time, according to Chief of Police Henry Dysart, for the people of the city to be on their guard against solicitors of all kinds and particularly those, who claim to be representing some church or charitable organization.

The people are requested to get in touch at once with the police in every instance where there is the least doubt in their minds concerning any such solicitor that may stop at their home, especially after they have been asked to show their police permit and are unable to do so.

It will prove a great saving in time and money, if the people will but co-operate in this matter as there are few solicitors out at the present time, who have any excuse for soliciting, other than a desire to get funds for their own personal use.

Big Christmas Dinner For Inmates Of Home

There are 37 persons who will spend their Christmas in the Lawrence county home. There are 30 male inmates and seven women according to Perry Snyder who said today that preparations for a big Christmas dinner for the unfortunates are being made.

"Are you going to have a Christmas tree?" he was asked.

"I do not believe so because it is not probable they would be much interested in a tree' 'he said.

Warden Snyder added however, that the public has always contributed gifts to inmates and he believes a repetition will occur this Christmas.

"Tobacco is something the men can always use. We give each of them a package each week but if they had more they could use it.

"Handkerchiefs and hosiery and other little things are articles that the women inmates would welcome" said Snyder.

Then he explained he had marked them with pin pricks. Concerning other hands in the game he trusted his friends. He was not fined.

AKRON, Ohio, Dec. 10.—Edwin W. Kain, poet and news feature writer, was a rambling husband as well as a rambling writer, Mrs. Ruth Kain told Common Pleas Judge L. S. Pardee when she applied for a divorce.

Mail Gifts Early Advice To Public

By Doing So Gifts Will Reach Destinations Before Christmas

"The public is requested to help us make this season the most successful in point of service we have ever had."

This is the appeal sounded today by local postoffice employes to the mailing public.

Last year everybody mailed early and the result was that practically all gifts had been mailed two days before Christmas.

By mailing early the same service can be rendered this year, the postoffice employes say.

In order to advise the public concerning delivery, they say gifts for the following points should be mailed on these dates:

Arizona, Dec. 15; California, Oregon, Washington, December 16; Nevada, December 17; Texas, December 17; Nebraska, December 18; Colorado, December 18; Kansas, December 20; Michigan, December 20; Florida, December 18; Iowa, December 20; Massachusetts, December 20; Illinois, December 20 and other states at relatively the same time.

Veterans Of Three Wars Unite In Drive To Reject Abolition Of Poison Gas

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Virtually certain of success, American veterans of three wars united today in a senate drive to reject ratification of the Geneva poison gas treaty.

Backed by virtually every soldiers' organization in the country, the veterans' bloc of the senate waged war against the treaty on the ground that its approval by the United States would leave America without proper national defense. Its rejection by this country, it was admitted will cause abandonment of the treaty by all the other nations which attended the Geneva conference last June.

The treaty was opposed in the senate by Senators Warren, R., of Wyoming, civil war veteran; Wadsworth, R., of New York, Spanish-American war veteran, and Reed, R., Pennsylvania; Bingham, R., Connecticut; Stewart, R., of Iowa; Means, R., of Colorado; Robinson, R., of Indiana; Tyson, D., of Tennessee, and Steck, D., of Iowa, veterans of the world war.

A pool by International News Service indicated rejection of the treaty when a vote is had next week.

The veterans opposed the abolition of gas as a means of warfare on the ground that it would force belligerents to the use of far less human weapons. They produced statistics to show that not more than two per cent of those affected by gas die, wheras deaths caused by shell, bayonet and shrapenel wounds mount to a far higher percentage, besides leaving wounded ones maimed for life.

Count Salm To Get Half Million To Abandon Suit

Father Of Millicent Rogers Standard Oil Millionaire Will Make Settlement

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Count Ludwig Salm is to get $500,000 in return for abandonment of his separation suit against his wife and a promise to remain in Europe, it was reported today following the unexpected adjournment of his action yesterday to January 17.

The money would be paid by Henry Huddleston Rogers, Standard Oil millionaire and father of Countess Salm, the former Millicent Rogers, according to reports. In return for the fortune the count would abandon all efforts to gain the custody of his two-year-old son, Peter, who is now with his mother, the countess.

Attorneys on both sides today refused to confirm the report that a half million dollar settlement was being negotiated, but they failed to deny the rumor.

The trend of population indicates that the cows and chickens have less appeal than calves.

About the only thing Europe and Uncle Sam agree on is the improbability that Europe will pay.

Stirring Address By Rev. Maitland

Delegations From Other Churches Attend Evangelistic Services

A stirring address on the subject, "Sowing and Reaping", was preached by Rev. Harry Maitland, the evangelist, Thursday evening in the Mahoning M. E. church. Beside the evangelist minister, Rev. Maitland, and Rev. J. N. Croxall, pastor of the church, Rev. Frampton of Slippery Rock Methodist church, Dr. J. L. Isenberg, president of the Slippery Rock State Normal school, and Rev. T. W. English, pastor at the Croton M. E. church were present and led in prayers during the service. Delegations were present from the Croton M. E. church, Slippery Rock and Mt. Jackson. The auditorium and balcony were filled.

Rev. Maitland took as his text, Galations 6: 7 and 8 verses. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting".

Rev. Maitland dwelt mostly on the kind of seed we sow in our lives and to turn away from sin and come to God. Ending with an appeal to not go on neglecting God and despising the Holy Spirit. A number of people went forward, and the service came to close with the singing of a number of revival hymns.

This evening the last service this week, Rev. Maitland will preach on the theme, "The Crucifixion." Service will begin at 7:30. There will not be any service on Saturday evening.

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Senator Gerald P. Nye was a White House visitor the other day.

At the last session of congress Leon Trotsky would have been about as likely a White House visitor as Senator Nye. Nye was one of those radical, insurgent Republicans then, worse hated by regular Republicans than good, safe Democrats were.

Times have changed. The regulars have got to have every available insurgent vote now, or they haven's got a senate majority. Consequently they're swallowing insurgency whole.

Leaving the White House, Nye registered gratification out loud. He registered it on his own part in behalf of his North Dakota fellow solon, Senator Lynn J. Frazier, who hadn't yet arrived in Washington, to register his own.

Frazier was so rampant an insurgent at the last session that the leaders read him out of the Republican party bodily.

In 1925-26 Nye and Frazier couldn't have dictated a third class postmastership government in North Dakota. For 1926-27 they're promised all the North Dakota patronage they want.

Nye called on President Coolidge to tell the latter that he and Frazier objected to the election of Col. C. F. Mudgett as United States marshal in North Dakota.

Mudgett, a staunch old regular, was supposed to have earned the marshalship as his reward. In fact it was announced definitely that he'd get the job. But Nye told the president "no"—Mudgett, as a regular, fought himself and Frazier. If he got the marshalship, Nye warned, the two North Dakota senators meant to fight his confirmation tooth and nail.

The president yielded at once. Mudgett won't be marshal. Nye won't be marshal. Nye and Frazier will decide who will. This may not be gratitude to Mudgett but it's politics.

No wonder Nye and Frazier are gratified.

A United States marshalship isn't so important a matter but the Mudgett incident shows the influential part of progressive promise to play in the present session of congress.

If they can dispose of Mudgett with so little ceremony, what can't they do?

The question is—will they?

Will the regulars feed them on Mudgetts until they grow fat and lazy—and tame? Or will the diet make them so strong and ferocious that presently they'll jump on some really vital issue and chew it all up?

For two radicals from the same state Frazier and Nye are a queerly assorted pair of senators.

Frazier's a bulky, phlegmatic man in late middle life. He looks the typical farmer that he is. In the heavyweight class, he hits hard but isn't very fast. He's an individual of advanced political views but in appearance he suggests the conservative, the ponderous, the immovable.

Nye is one of the senate's babies. He isn't yet 35. He's short and slight—would pass for 10 years less than his age. He's quick and alert. His eye flames. He doesn't deal such sledge-hammer blows as Frazier, but he lands early and often, cutting an adversary to pieces.

In consideration of the president's obliging attitude on the Mudgett proposition Nye says he intends to "cooperate with the administration as far as possible," but that leaves him a good deal of latitude.

STATE CALLS WOMEN IN MURDER TRIAL OF WASHINGTON BOY

STEUBENVILLE, O., Dec. 10.—With damaging evidence against Albert Pirrung, 21 years old, of Washington, Pa., on trial for the murder of Patrolman Owen Burns, in a vice den November 7, the state yesterday began developing its case, calling women of the underworld who are said to have been witnesses of the crime.

George Ammon and Aaron Bismark, hucksters of Cleveland, testified that they were at the Cleveland & Pittsburgh station waiting for a train when they heard a shot, then a voice say, "You'll never make another arrest." He asid the speaker was Pirrung, who flourished a revolver and menaced a crowd the shot attracted. They testified they saw the man drag Burns' body out of the house and drop it in the street a few minutes later.

Some use smuggled arms as a means of getting out of the penitentiary, and some are wealthy enough to use broken health.

New York Leads In City Record For Bath Tubs

Probably More Per Resident Than In Any Other City In World

By ARTHUR WIMER
(New York Correspondent New Castle News)

NEW YORK, Dec. 10. — New York probably leads all other cities of the world in the number of baths per resident in its dwellings and hotels.

It is not at all uncommon to find two bath tubs in the average four or five room flat of the city. An advertisment for a new apartment on upper Fifth Avenue announces three to five baths in four to seven room suites. This building, a fifteen story structure, will probably boast two hundred and fifty bathtubs when plumbers have installed the last fixture.

It might be thought that conditions existing in crowded tenement districts of lower and east New York might very noticeably decrease the number of baths per resident of the City. Even in these sections, however, the bathtub is plentiful, whether much used or not. The law sees to that fact, requiring that there be at least one bath on every floor of each dwelling.

The bathtub in America has had a varied and checkered career. The first tub appeared in the United States as late as the 1840s. It was built of polished mahogany, and made water-tight with a thin lining of sheet lead. People looked askance at this new device; newspapers criticized it as a "luxurious and undemocratic novelty."

According to the Hospital Review the first tub was even assailed by physicians, who called the use of it "a menace to health." Philadelphia in 1843 enacted a law prohibiting bathing between November 1 and March 15. Health authorities feared the combination of bathtubs and winter weather. Soon afterward an ordinance passed in Boston required on behalf of the public health that baths should be taken only when prescribed by a physician.

An English newsletter of her period states that "Queen Elizabeth hath built herself a bath where she doth bathe herself once a month whether she requires it or not." A current press controversy in London indicates that the bathtub appeared in England between 1860 and 1885.

France used the individual bathtub generally toward the end of the eighteenth century. Murat, it will be recalled, was stabbed by Charlotte Corday, while writing in his bath.

From the days of the Roman bath pools until the sixteenth century the bath was practically unknown in Western Europe and was considered dangerous, but Russia and Turkey and Japan maintained community baths. Russian hotel bathrooms are elaborately equipped, mostly with marble, and have to be engaged in advance like seats at the opera. Each Japanese native hotel has a general pool. But it remains the privilege of the practical American to glorify the common-place tub, and New York City is the leader in making the plumber happy in the bathtub branch of his trade.

France Passes New Law To Curb All Landlords

(International News Service)

PARIS, Decf. 10.—American as well as other foreign holders of real estate in France cannot evict Frenct tenants who occupy their property for "personal habitation or for commercial, industrial or agricultural purposes' under the terms of an amendment to the financial bill coming from the French chamber soon.

The amendment already has been approved by the finance committee but still has to go through parliament before it becomes a law. The law now allows French landlords to exercise the right of eviction in certain circumstances.

Find Coal Deposit Near Greenville

GREENVILLE Pa., Dec. 10—A deposit of coal has been discovered on the Leslie Hunt farm on the hill immediately west of Greenville. Preparations are being made to mine this coal.

The deposit was discovered by Samuel Landfried, John Hoffman and Mr. Lininger, after making some test holes. It is situated at the north end of the farm, near the Greenville-Maysville road and is not a great distance from an abandoned coal mine of this same farm, which is probably best known as the Howe farm, a show place in its day, with a splendid house, very large barn and a private racetrack as features.

Santa Claus Party Reaches New Castle Early This Morning

Fat and jolly and as prosperous looking as a millionaire oil operator, Santa Claus, patron saint of childhood, arrived in New Castle this morning just before daybreak.

The eastern sky was still dark gray, and a light fall of snow was whirling and blowing over the hills as the giant dirigible Cheerio pushed its nose through the clouds and headed down to the ground out beyond the city.

Everybody Happy.

In spite of the early hour, a News man was on hand to welcome the distinguished visitors and everybody was awake but little Nuctooh. The late hour was too much for the little tike and he was fast asleep in the basket of the dirigible.

As soon as the ship made a landing the Brownies hopped out with a yell and wanted to know how everything was in New Castle. "Gosh it's good to get back here," said one of the young rogues.

Mr. and Mrs. Tautuk were just a little abashed for this is their first trip to New Castle and they do not speak as good English as the Brownies or some of the rest of the group. But in their shy Eskimo way they made their visitor understand that they were glad to be here and wanted to meet all the kiddies of New Castle today in the parade.

The North Wind and Jack Frost had sent their messengers on ahead but promised that the weather for today would be just right for the parade.

Everybody Talking.

Everybody was talking so much and so fast that the News man nearly forgot what he went for—an interview with Santa Claus. The jolly old chap was busy unpacking his personal kit and seeing to it that nothing would harm his gift pack, in which are the toys for good little boys and girls of New Castle.

While he was unpacking his stuff the Brownies opened a corner of the pack to show what was inside. You should of had a look. There was a great big doll there tagged for a certain young lady out on the East Side. Then therew as a small piano for a lad up on the North Hill, and a pair of skates for a boy down on the South Side. Some little girl in the seventh ward is going to be mighty happy over the table and chair set she is going to get, and the lad up in Croton who gets that red express wagon will have a time with it.

Everything you could imagine. Dolls and sleds and footballs and skates and tool chests and toys of every kind and description. The Brownies were real proud of the work for it represented their labor of the past year and well they might be proud.

Santa Claus Talks.

Finally Santa Claus got his whiskers combed out, his hair parted and after Mrs. Santa Claus had told him to "take the shine off his nose" the old fellow started to talk.

Leaning back in the easy chair he had on board the dirigible Cheerio he told some of his experiences.

Last night while you were all sleeping so cosily in your warm beds I came into New Castle right past your house.

The Brownies wanted to stop and examine the roof and chimneys and peek through the keyhole to see what kind of boys and girls you were but since I have received reports on all of you from Jack Frost and North Wind I did not stay long enough to give them a chance.

There were cats on back porches, however, and I talked awhile to them and to the dogs next door. Now if you would only learn the cat and dog languages you could call them in and find out what we talked about.

One dog I talked to complained that he had stayed at the house for several years but that no one had ever given him a single Christmas present. I certainly hope this dog is taken care of this year.

Misses Hitching Posts.

There is one thing I miss since automobiles have become so popular and that is the hitching posts that used to be in front of nearly every home. Now when I stop my reindeer team to fill the stockings that are hung about the fireplaces and over the bottoms of beds I worry a great deal about the team of reindeer running away. Once Dasher, Dancer, Prancer, Vixen, Donner and Blitzen did get away from me and I spent nearly an entire night chasing them. Finally, however, a nice policeman caught them and held them until I caught up. I punished the reindeer that time by giving them only half their usual allowance of reindeer moss.

Once I had a whole sleigh-load of talking dolls and toy pianos and when I stopped to deliver some toys the dolls got to talking among themselves and decided to have a piano concert. I wish you could have been there and heard the music.

One of the talking dolls played Christmas carols while a few joined in singing "Home, Sweet Home." Then some of the dolls decided to play duets and at one time eight of those pianos were being played at one and the same time. When I came back and caught them at it I soon stopped that concert for they were making so much noise I was afraid they would waken all the boys and girls in the neighborhood. Have you been singing my new song, "There Is a Santa Claus?"

Arrive in Night.

We got into New Castle early this morning after a long journey. Think of us coming away down here to New Castle from the Garden of Happiness at the Top of the World! Luckily for me everything went all right. We had no accidents on the way down and aside from getting cold once or twice we were very comfortable.

I brought with me, Mr. and Mrs. Tautuk and the little baby Tautuk, all Eskimos from the Top of the World.

In Christmas Tree Land.

On my way south I passed through Christmas tree land and helped the Brownies pick out the pine trees that will be delivered to you a little later on. This year's Christmas trees are very beautiful, and I know you will like them.

Most of these trees grew from seed that was planted several years ago by squirrels. Perhaps you did not know that the squirrels have been working for me for a long, long time and that I depend upon them to plant all the Christmas trees in Christmas tree land.

Puget Sound To Be New Film Center

(International News Service)

SEATTLE, Dec. 10.—The Puget Sound country will become a center for motion picture activities if a way can be found to curb forest fires and eliminate the smoke nuisance, according to Lynn Reynolds, director for the Universal Film company of Los Angeles, who is spending a few days in the Pacific northwest.

"This country is rich in scenic values and there is no reason why this should not be the setting for many photoplays," Reynolds said. "The smoke from forest fires is the only thing that keeps producers from taking advantage of the wonderful woods, streams and mountains in this state.

"If you people up here will find a way to cure the smoke nuisance, you will find moving picture companies flocking to this territory. This is one of the few sections of the country that has not been touched by the makers of modern pictures."

Mr. Reynolds is seeking a setting for a picture to be filmed covering one of James Oliver Curwood's new stories. He said that he had found several spots in this locality that would make an ideal setting for such a film.

Gar Wood Plans To Enter Boat Race In South

(International News Service)

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 10.—Gar Wood, famous millionaire boat builder and pilot of Detroit, Mich., will drive here this winter for the salt water speed championship of the world.

Wood, who came here to make preparations for the arrival of his racing boats as well as his 50-mile-an-hour cruiser, is confident that with the Miss America IV and Miss America V he will be able to skim over the salty stretches of Biscayne bay faster than any boat has travelled.

Wood claims 80 miles an hour for his new boats.

Too Much Fondling Blamed By Physician For Babies' Deaths

CHICAGO, Dec. 10—Entirely too many babies are "kissed to death" by their overly affectionate parents and other relatives, states Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, Chicago health commissioner, in his weekly health bulletin.

"Babies do not die because they are unfit," the bulletin sets forth. "They die for the sanitary sins of their parents and the community at large. They die in the summer time from the combined effects of hot weather and bad diet and in the winter from hot homes, improper feeding, and nose, throat, and lung infections brought to them by people who have coughs and colds, but who insist upon kissing and fondling them."

Russian Police Discover Suicide Club For Children

(International News Service)

MOSCOW, Dec. 10.—Police of Tahila, in the Urals, are searching for the ringleaders of a suicide club composed of children from 10 to 15 years of age. They were apprised of the existence of the club through the suicide of Ivan Borodin, youngest member of the organization.

Ivan, though only nine years old, had been admitted because of his precocity. He hanged himself, and left a note reading "The council has met, and I have killed my own self."

Motor Employes Given Insurance

(International News Service)

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 10. — All employes of the General Motors corporation with service of three months or more have been insured by that company for $1,000. The policy is the largest ever issued under the group insurance plan, according to the announcement of the corporation.

More than 100,000 employes benefit under this $100,000,000 policy, states Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors.

The policy covers the lives of all the people with the necessary service period on the payrolls of General Motors, its subsidiary and affiliated organizations.

The plan is cooperative. Both employes and General Motors to share the cost after the first month, which has been paid entirely by the corporation. New employes become eligible without the first free month however when their service periods reach three months.

NEW CASTLE BOYS IN CLASS BATTLE

Will Take Part In Fresh-Soph Debate At Westminster Tonight

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Dec. 10.—Throughout the college year many of the institutions of higher learning in this land, a feeling of what might be termed friendly-antipathy exists between the members of the freshman and sophomore classes. This holds true at Westminster College.

There have been tussles a-plenty between the male members of the two classes. The Sophs were successful in their initiation tactics and also succeeded in defending their flag in the annual rush. However, the football battle between the classes ended differently, the first year men handing the sophomores a drubbing.

Friday evening, the inter-class rivalry will be carried to the forensic platform, the male debate teams of the two classes meeting in the college chapel. "Resolved, that the United States should cancel the allied war debts" is the question to be discussed. There is every indication that the debate will be interesting. Both teams have been working for weeks and are primed for their big occasion.

The sophomores will have Clyde Myers of New Castle, Byers King of Cooperstown, and Thomas Mansell of New Wilmington, with Normon Van Brocklin of New Castle, as alternate. The freshmen will depend on Peter Botsford of Pittsburgh, James Chambers of New Castle, and Clarence McCracken of Volant.

Tau Kappa Alpha, the honorary debate fraternity of the college, will supervise the affair. Faculty members will act as judges.

A wireless outfit that may be changed from telegraphic to telephony is to be installed at Christchurch, N. Y.

Owns Three Books Highly Valuable

History Instructor At Westminster Has Valuable Historical Books

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Dec. 10.—Among the books which are in the possession of Hunter D. Farish, instructor in history at Westminster, are three which he prizes as especially valuable. They are from the library of Cokesbury college at Abington, Md., the first Methodist college in the world.

The importance of the books lies not so much in their content as in their historical significance in connection with Cokesbury college. The institution was named after Bishop Coke and Bishop Asbury. It was founded about 1790 and after being three times destroyed by fire, dropped out of existence.

The Westminster instructor discovered the books while visiting the old home town of Judge Charles Tait of Alabama recently. Judge Tait was a student under Bishop Asbury. Incidentally Asbury Park was named after Bishop Asbury. Judge Tait was an instructor in Cokesbury college when it was last destroyed by fire and he purchased the books at the dissolution of the library.

Judge Tait later became a very prominent statesman, being senator from Georgia and Alabama and the first judge of the federal court of Alabama. He was also a prominent member of the American Philosophical society and a member of the Philadelphia Academy of Sciences.

The books are Virgil's "Aeneid", Homer's poetry and a journal of Bishop Asbury. They are a part of the few remnants left from the library of Cokesbury college and of that eminent statesman, Judge Charles Tait, and for these reasons are of great value.

Famous Opera Curbed By Soviets

(International News Service)

MOSCOW, Dec. 10.—Even the popular Russian composer Rimsky Korsakov is not exempt from the Soviet government censor's ban on music which in any way "promotes the religious feelings."

Rimsky Korsakov's famous opera "The Legend of the Unseen City of Kitege" has just been subjected to an especial examination by a commission headed by the Commissar of Education Lunacharsky. The commission found that:

"The opera is musically artistic and of high aesthetic value, but since it contains a number of orthodox Russian church hymns it tends to promote false and harmful impressions upon its hearers. Therefore the opera will be permitted to be played not more than once a month."

Hitherto "The Legend of the Unseen City of Kitege" has been attracting capacity audiences twice a week.

Plan Construction Of World's Largest Golf Links In Ohio

(International News Service)

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 10.—The world's greatest golf course—on which it will require three days of normal play to get around—is to be put under construction here within the next few weeks.

Five courses, of 18 holes each, laid out in continuity with all the abracadabra loved and abhorred simultaneously by golfers, will form the new playground, located at Windsor, O., near here.

The feat has been made possible by A. W. Green of Warren, O., a wealthy sportsman, who announces that the new organization will be encouraged to become the greatest organization of its kind.

Dues are to be moderate, enabling the "middle class" golf rotary to satiate his desire for the game. A hotel to be conducted at modest rates will be built at the course where members may spend their week-ends.

A contract has been awarded the American Park Builders, a Chicago concern, for construction of the links. This company has built nearly 800 golf courses in America, its chief feat being completion of the Olympia Fields club at Chicago, now the largest in this country.

The initial cost of converting the land into a golf paradise has been estimated at $1,000,000, according to Green.

The organization will be entirely by membership and it is expected that the roster will carry 3,000 names by the end of next year.

Wife, 75, Wed 56 Years, To Divorce Fickle Mate

ALAMEDA, Cal., Dec. 10.—After 56 years of married life Mrs. Annie R. Weeks, 75, has concluded that her husband, George F. Weeks, head of a Mexican news bureau in Washington, D. C., is fickle. She so declared in a divorce petition filed here and set forth that he ran away 20 years ago, stayed away 17 years, and now has gone again.

Mrs. Weeks believes her nine children—she is a great grandmother, too—are old enough to take care of themselves, and says after the divorce she is going to marry Arnald De Cacia, "a fine, upstanding boy who fought in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870." She charges desertion.

Council Recommends Purchase Of Signal Light At Fifth Street

Sealed Bids Opened For Erecting Comfort Station In Ellwood City

Committee To Be Appointed To Investigate Feasibility Of Zoning In Ellwood

ELLWOOD CITY, Dec. 10.—After much discussion the members of council voted favorably on the purchasing of the signal traffic light which has been here on trial for 60 days, at the regularly monthly meeting which took place in the city building last night. The light will cost $275 and will probably lead to the placing of others at Fifth and Spring streets, North street and Line avenue and Glen avenue and Fifth streets.

Another important decision at the meeting was made when the members, acceding to a petition written by the members of the Zoning committee of the Chamber of Commerce in June, asking that the president of council appoint a committee of five men, not on council, to investigate the city, collect data and to decide in a general way, if the plan of zoning the town would work out for the best interests of all concerned. Their final report will come up before the city body at some future date.

Bids from contractors for the Comfort station were opened and read as follows: J. Clyde Gilfillan Contracting Co., total bid of $5,748, Lusk Construction Co., $4,895; Peter Schenck Contracting Co., $4,895; Wm. M. Clark Co., $2,820; Gardner Brothers, $2,963; Frank Cole, $3,103. Action on bids was held over until next meeting of council December 30.

A letter was read by Secretary George Moyer from the Plumbers association offering a donation as to the furnishing of the Comfort station, and owing to their unfinished plans regarding same, requested that letting of plumbing contract be deferred.

Pete Kallachis asked council for permission to operate an Ice Skating rink on Wampum avenue. He was referred to Ordinance No. 600, and his case turned over to Rules and Regulations committee and Borough solicitor.

C. K. Bixen presented a complaint regarding construction of a sewer on his property on Cedar street and taxes on same. Action on this case will be taken by Sewer committee, Borough solicitor and Borough engineer.

A letter was read from the J. Wilbur Randolph Post of the local American Legion thanking the members of the council for aid in the celebration of Armistice day.

The property on Fountain avenue and Sixth street was again offered for sale to the council by W. V. Yoho. The members have had this property under consideration for some time, but no definite action has been taken.

The local property owners having dead trees on their property, purchased some time ago from the Borough, will have new ones planted in the spring. The members of the Shade Tree committee, which have since resigned, had an understanding to that effect with the E. E. Freeland company. J. W. Humphrey will look into the situation and notify the members of the Shade Tree committee whose resignations have not been accepted, to authorize the Freeland company to replace trees according to their contract.

Banquet Of School Men Is Successful

Freedom Is Awarded Football Trophy By Athletic Committee

ELLWOOD CITY, Dec. 10.—At the meeting of the Schoolmen's club of the Beaver valley which took place last night in the form of a banquet at the Methodist church, several important matters were discussed, namely the awarding of the football trophy to the only two eligible teams—Ellwood City and Freedom. The members of the athletic committee went into conference resulting in the awarding of the trophy to Freedom. The award was made on the principle of highest percentage of games played, in which rating Freedom came first, Ellwood second and Monaca third.

The members of the Child's Study bureau met in the afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Lincoln building and various committees met at 4 o'clock, an executive meeting at 5 p. m. and the formal banquet at 6 o'clock in the Methodist church.

Supt. Vanderslice Speaks.

At the banquet a fine address enjoyed from Supt. Vanderslice of Woodlawn on the topic "Vocational Training in the Schools" at which time he advanced sound reasons why this training is indispensable in the schools of today. The next speaker was Supt. Albright of Rochester who gave his views on "Moral Training in the High School" and cited interesting facts about what happens when this phase of school training is neglected. From the opening committee meeting to the last speaker on the banquet program the convention was an unqualified success.

Police Chief Reports On Recent Conference

May Permit Left Hand Turns At Corner Of Fifth And Lawrence Avenues

ELLWOOD CITY, Dec. 10.—An interesting report on the recent convention of mayor and police conducted in Harrisburg was given by Chief of Police Teater at the council meeting conducted in the city building Thursday evening.

The chief seems to have the motorists problems at heart, for he argued strongly for the use of a left-hand turn off Lawrence at Fifth street, and explained that it could be worked out successfully with four lines of traffic, two each way, with inside lines making left turns and lines next to curbs going straight.

The plan of the convention in Harrisburg was to endeavor to secure uniform traffic regulations throughout the state of Pennsylvania. The Hon. Herber Hoover, Mr. Elderidge of D. of C., and the chief of police of Chicago were among the prominent speakers.

They all agreed that traffic could be handled more successfully by a mechanical device, as when an officer is on duty the motorist is apt to watch him instead of his signals.

A committee of twelve men was appointed to attend the legislature to endeavor to amend present traffic laws as follows: Complete stop at railroad crossings; uniform hand signals that really mean something; motorist must stay behind car in front at least 100 feet; no passing of street cars on the left hand side. Stopping within 10 feet of street car admitting or discharging passengers; no passing a car at an intersection and last but not least uniform traffic laws in Pennsylvania. To work out the left hand turn there will have to be "No Parking" signs placed in front of the Peoples Bank, Albert's drug store, J. I. Porter and Wilson Johnson drug store.

The chief of police also asked for three more lights to be placed at dangerous intersections about the city. Action on above was referred to the members of the street committee and will be brought up for decision at the meeting of council which will take place December 30.

Stevenson, with Miss Marjorie Streeter at the piano; presentation of troop charter to the Rotary troop which was accepted by J. I. Porter who told a little story of his life as a boy when boys didn't have the advantages they have now. Bob Shields showed the men how to start a fire with friction and the members of the Rotary club put on two clever stunts. George Emery made the presentation of certificates of membership to Dr. B. M. Anderson, member of the troop committee and Elmo Grandey, scoutmaster. The meeting then adjourned to attend the Scout Court of Honor.

Many Ellwood People See Santa

Interurban Cars Crowded All Morning Taking Crowds To New Castle

ELLWOOD CITY, Dec. 10.—Many Ellwood people journeyed to New Castle this morning with their children to see Santa Claus and his parade.

The streets of New Castle swarmed with the biggest crowd ever collected in that city for a parade. One of the local stores amused the crowds before the parade with a real live clown in the window. The parade itself, while of short duration, was an emotion-stirring spectacle.

There were about five bands ranging from the large city band to the little tots from the Croton school who performed on their instruments with gusto and looked darling in their little suits.

Santa himself was drawn by several pairs of reindeer who surprised the onlookers by their short appearance. None but those in the front rows could see anything but their horns.

Several attractive floats depicting Eskimo land, Little Red Riding Hood and the Three Bears, Brownies in Santas' workshop and the old lady living in a shoe, that had so many children she didn't know what to do, was shown with the huge shoe, a wash out on the line and swarms of kiddies bursting from all sides of the bulging footgear.

May Hire Borough Manager For City

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Dec. 10.—J. S. Bowater, chairman of the Streets Committee brought up the question of hiring a Borough manager here, at the recent meeting of the Borough council in the city building.

Mr. Bowater claimed that many affairs came up in a hurry during the month that members of various committees of Council could not attend to efficiently. A man hired in this capacity and working under advice from the Council could save the city enough in one year to pay his salary. This plan has been worked out successfully in Ambridge, Corry and Grove City as well as countless other cities.

A letter was read on the legal phase of the question from J. W. Humphrey who stated that the Borough may authorize the creation of such an office, but members of the Council, the Burgess or Secretary of Council are not eligible. The Council will merely act in an advisory capacity. No definite action was taken but the idea is under serious consideration.

Ordinance On Great White Way Passed

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Dec. 10.—At the meeting of the Borough Council which took place on Thursday evening in the city building, the members took favorable action on using the great whfte way system from Sixth street to the railroad crossing, property owners to be assessed two-thirds of the cost on above project.

PETERS ADVENTURES IN ANIMAL LAND

By Florence Smith Vincent

BRAVEHEART

The crow and the lark and the fat-as-butter sparrow looked down upon the wrestlers from the old oak tree and there was no longer any doubt of it at all in any of their minds.

"He's a two-legs, all right!" twittered the sparrow.

"Beyond the shadow of a doubt, since who else would have fallen upon the wild boy in such friendly fashion? A four-foot would have eaten him or would have run away," cawed the wise crow.

The lark, who was happiest when all was right with the world, twittered a merry lay that sounded like:—

"When stranger meets stranger
What need for fear or fright,
When just a look, a laughing
Word will set things right?"

And the boy with the white skin and the boy with the brown punched and pummeled each other and had a jolly time of it. But at last the nut-brown lad punched too hard and down went Peter with a thud to the ground.

"Caw, 'twit, tra-la," cried the birds. "What will happen now?"

And what did happen was another fall—and this time the boy with the brown skin went down. Peter, holding on for dear life, had pulled him over. And if the nut-brown lad had been surprised at meeting Peter it was nothing to his wonder at what the strange boy had done to him.

"By the beard of my father!" cried he, "never before has one of his own size made Braveheart bite the dust."

Peter laughed.

"You're pretty strong yourself, you know, fellow! If it hadn't been for a trick I know you would have been the victor. Now we're quits! Say, why do you call yourself Braveheart? And who are you, anyhow?"

The nut-brown lad stared at Peter as though his ears had deceived him.

"Braveheart" he repeated, slowly. "Need you ask why one who knows no fear is called by so true a name? Have you not heard of the lad who trailed a bear to its den and alone and with a stone killed the cat that wails? Who are you, then, and from where do you come to this Land of Long Ago?"

Next: "Puzzled."

Cut Poor, Save Good Trees—Cut crooked, short, bushy crowned, diseased, slow-growing, poor timber trees, and some trees where too thick, but save straight, tall, well-crowned, sound, fast-growing, good timber trees. Save enough trees to the acre.

School Children Show Eggs—Pupils learn how to select eggs and also get stimulated interest by having local egg shows in the school. The pupils see their eggs judged and get first-hand criticisms. Schools making a collective exhibit at the State Farm Products Show in January will save the management time by sending in their entries collectively. Entry blanks and further information may be obtained from the county agent.

NEW CASTLE TO OPEN FLOOR SEASON TONIGHT

Grove City To Be Opponents

Coach Bridenbaugh Undecided On Team To Start Opening Game Of Year

HARTMAN HAS FAST QUINTET

By "BUGS" WALTHER

Ned Castle High will pry the lid off their 1926-27 basketball season tonight at the Senior High School by meeting the Grove City High team. The girls' varsity team will meet the Rick-Overlands in a preliminary game which starts at 6:45 o'clock. The boys will start immediately following the girls' game.

The Red and Black passers have had about one month of training and are ready for the gruelling season that awaits them. Many of the boys on the squad had basketball training prior to the close of the football campaign. At the end of the grid season several of the football men joined the floor squad.

Coach Phil H. Bridenbaugh was a little undecided on Thursday afternoon in regard to his starting lineup for tonight's game. There is a wealth of good material available at the Senior High this year and for that very reason the coach is finding it difficult to weed out the boys.

It is the intention of Bridenbaugh to start one combination with all possibility that the boys may be removed at any time. Two fast teams have been used in the practice games. Just which combination is the strongest is hard to determine, and for that reason the coach wishes to take a look at them in actual combat before making his selections.

The following men will report tonight: Captain Klaber, Sillman, Neiman, Franklin, McClelland, Johnson, Raney, Ostrosky, Richards and McGrath, with possibly a few others.

Girls To Play

Coach Boyd of the Girls' Varsity team announced Thursday afternoon that her charges would engage the Rick-Overland Girls' team in a preliminary to the boys' game. The girls have been practicing for quite some time and have attained a high degree of efficiency.

Miss Boyd is having much the same trouble as Coach Bridenbaugh, that of selecting a suitable combination to start the game tonight.

Big Five Open With Victory

The Rick-Overland Big Five team of the City Industrial League traveled to Butler on Thursday night and defeated the Forged Steel Wheel team of that city by a score of 28 to 21 in a fast battle.

At half time the score stood 19 to 8 in favor of the Big Five.

Frazier, Snider, Nolte and Hood led the scoring for the locals, while J. Bayer and Braun were the best bets for Butler.

The line-up:

Big Five—		Forged Steel
Frazier	F	Baker
Slovonsky	F	J. Bayer
Snider	C	Geibel
Nolte	G	Braun
Volesko	G	P. Bayer

Subs.: Hood for Slovonsky, Krankota for P. Bayer.

Field goals: Frazier 3, Snider 2, Nolte 3, Hood 2, Slovonsky, J. Bayer 3, Braun 4, Geibel, Krankota.

Fouls: Big Five, 4 out of 8; Forged Steel, 2 out of 12.

Referee: Vensel.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

By ED. FRITZ

JACK Dempsey showed symptoms of poisoning the day after his fight with Gene Tunney, according to Dr. Abe Baron, examining physician for the Pennsylvania athletic commission. The physician, when interviewed at Philadelphia, said the poisoning could have occurred to Jack through possible food contamination or local infection.

THE physician said he examined Dempsey the night of the fight and found no evidence of temperature. "Still, I was surprised at the condition of the champion," he said. "He was in much better shape two weeks before the battle than he was on the night of the fight, when there was no local evidence of poisoning."

FOLLOWING the fight, or to be exact, the day after the fight Dr. Baron says he was summoned to Dempsey's hotel. He had been called to stitch a cut above one of Jack's eyes. "At the same time I noticed maucles or papules on the lower part of his face. I later attended him at Atlantic City and these maucles and papules were in greater evidence. These indicated to me that there was disturbance in Dempsey's system."

THE physician said that in Dempsey's case the symptoms before the fight were those of a person who was developing a disorder that took two or three days before it made itself fully evident. "I could not say what was the nature of the infection that he suffered, but certainly there were local signs of organic disturbances. How his condition affected him in the ring, I could not say."

HUGHEY Jennings is paying the price of too much enthusiasm. At least, that is what he claims. Jennings has only recently left a bed following a long siege of illness. "In the old days when I was with Detroit, I was on the coaching line every minute, yelling constantly. A headache would start in the first game and last throughout the season. I had kept it up for 10 years and now I'm paying the penalty for too much enthusiasm." We know a chap in New Castle who had a terrible headache this morning, and it wasn't caused by too much enthusiasm, but by too much indulgence with a red bowl.

NEW Year's day will follow Christmas. The newsies of New Castle will be banqueted on the afternoon of January 1 by Leff & Silverman at the Leslie restaurant, after which there will be a vaudeville performance. Persons who would like to sing, dance or monologue for the enjoyment of the newsies can send their names, addresses and tell what act they will do, to the writer. Hughey Hannon, an old-time minstrel performer, will strut his stuff. Will D. Williams will render a couple of vocal numbers. What jazz band will play for the boys? Who can do the Boston, Blackbottom or Charleston? Let the names come.

KID Cangie, local junior lightweight, is doing roadwork, preparatory to a chance in New York. The Kid is hotfooting five miles every morning along the Wampum road, according to automobilists, who have noticed the "socker" bundled in heavy clothing, topped off with a sweater with colors of flaming red and spotless white. Cangie is one of the best punchers the local fight ranks have ever had. He punches good with either hand and really likes to fight. If the Kid really gets a chance to box in Gotham and is right the night of the fight, fans will see a good melee.

HAVING gotten that off our chest, we hope that Adrien McKibben, former New Castle resident, now residing in New York, reads it. We know very well that the minute he does see it he will get his keen scissors, clip the article and show it to some of his friends who make matches for boxers. Adrian has long been a friend of local fighters. He has tried to help all the local boys. He also helped to exploit Jimmie Dunn's champion, Johnny Kilbane, long before Johnny reached the golden chair.

Spaghetti Supper For High Gridders

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Richards of 1102 Agnew street, have sent out invitations to the members of the New Castle high football team and coaching staff to attend a spaghetti supper on Tuesday evening, December 14.

Twenty-two members of the team, in addition to Coaches Bridenbaugh, Klee and Thomas and Managers Gardner, Hoag and Brown will attend the dinner.

Attorney George W. Muse, Chas. "Bugs" Walther, Pete Capitolo, and William Chill have been invited as special guests.

New Red Sox Pilot Is Properly Hard Boiled For A Hard Job

By NORMAN E. BROWN

Unless the refinements of a sane business existence and home life have softened Mr. William A. Carrigan, new manager of the Boston Red Sox, in the ten years he has been out of baseball, the Boston players are in for a pleasant (?) surprise next spring.

Lee Fohl failed to build a fighting, winning ball club at Boston mainly because he lacked the fire and pugnaciousness to put the SCRAP into the ball players he and his aides collected.

Lee had plenty of ball players of fair mechanical ability. But most of them were eight-hour boys. They were in baseball apparently to draw their salary on the first and 15th. The score mattered little.

Fohl's easy-going disposition wasn't appreciated in the main. In fact, the boys took advantage of him. And the few times that Lee did speak harshly, by word of mouth or through a small fine, the victims would sulk, take their dolls and go home. "Oh, to end it all!"

But long about Christmas of 1927 these tenderhearted boys will be chipping in to buy Lee an arm chair.

For Bill Carrigan won two pennants in four years as manager of the Red Sox by the simple expedient of ruling his team with an iron hand—driving them with the whip. When the occasion demanded he put the proper "fight" into his team or members of it by leading with his right and crossing with his left.

Comes from "Hard Days"

Carrigan is of the old school—hard-boiled and proud of it.

Drawing room deportment is out of place on a ball field, as Carrigan sees it. It's a case of the survival of the fittest—and fightingest. The man who hasn't the love of combat (in proper manner) bubbling over in his system isn't wanted on Bill's club. And he won't be there long.

Carrigan goes into the game with a free hand. He doesn't need the money. He's virtually a millionaire right now. He was wealthy when he stepped out of baseball 10 years ago and has multiplied every dollar he then had. He seeks but one thing in the future from baseball, then—the old thrill of leading a pennant winning team. He is free to ride his men roughshod to get that thrill.

And the funny part of it is that Carrigan makes his men "like it." They were so used to his driving methods when he left in 1916 that Jack Barry, a member of Bill's team, failed to make a name for himself as a manager because he tried the gentle hand with the team.

Carrigan broke into the big show with the Red Sox in 1908. He had been given a tryout in the summer of 1907 after leaving Holy Cross, filling in for the veteran and famous Lou Criger. The Sox sent him to Toronto for a bit of seasoning and then called him back in 1908, I believe. It wasn't long before he became the leading catcher and mainstay of the team.

Suffered Many Injuries

His fearlessness won him popularity. He seemed to get keen delight out of blocking runners at the plate and as a result of his intrepid tactics suffered many injuries. In 1911 he cracked an ankle while sliding into a base and for a time his baseball days were believed over. He fooled the doleful ones, however, and in 1913, when Jake Stahl resigned as manager, was named to succeed him.

Carrigan played the dual role of pilot and catcher.

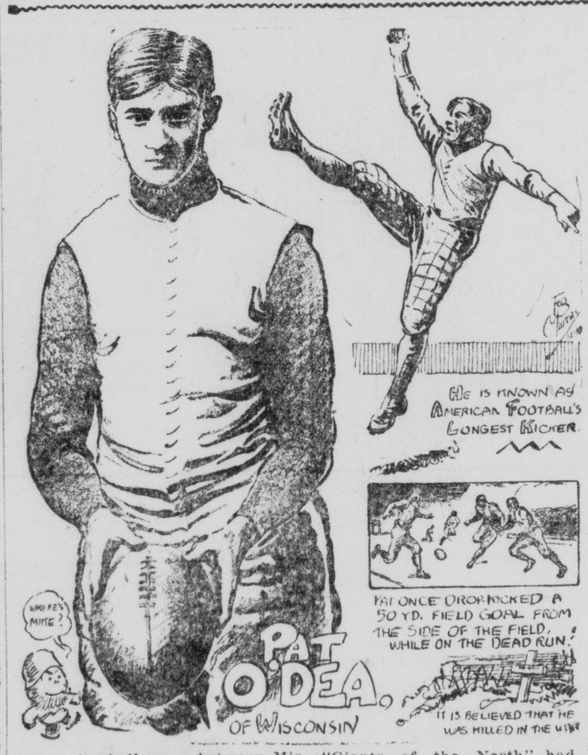
In the world's series of 1915 against the Phillies Carrigan, with his forceful leadership and strategy, won the world's championship by taking four out of five games from the late Pat Moran.

The three-hit game hurled by the southpaw, Dutch Leonard, in the third game of the series was one of the high spots of the classic. Carrigan caught Leonard that game. The Sox won it, 2 to 1.

The Red Sox won the league title in 1916 and turned back the Brooklyn Dodgers by taking four out of five games.

His Toe Was Famous

By Feg Murray



In a football game between Minnesota and Wisconsin, held on the old Northrup field in Minneapolis in 1899, a tall, lithe, young Australian, wearing the cardinal of Wisconsin, gave one of the most remarkable exhibitions in all gridiron history. Catching a Minnesota punt on his own 40-yard line, the lad in question started running back with the ball toward his opponent's goal. He had covered about ten yards when Gil Dobie, then one of Doc Williams' famous "Giants of the North" had him stopped near the side-line. Just when it seemed certain that the Wisconsin runner would be tackled or forced out of bounds, he did a most surprising thing. With a glance at the goal posts 50 yards away, he took a quick shot around the tackler and drop-kicked a perfect field goal from a most difficult angle, while running at top speed!

The kicker was Pat O'Dea, whose name has long been a by-word in the middle west whenever great kickers are discussed. In a game with Northwestern the year before, Pat had made a remarkable drop-kick of 62 yards, and he had also made an exhibition drop-kick of 63 yards, 11 inches the same year. His punting was as remarkable as his field goal kicking and it is said that he once kicked a football 100 yards. At any rate, O'Dea was, without any doubt, one of the longest punters and drop-kickers in gridiron history. In a game with the Carlisle Indians, played in the old Coliseum in Chicago in 1896, one of Pat's long, high spirals landed up among the roof girders and stuck there!

Pat O'Dea was born in Melbourne, Australia, in 1871. He began kicking a football around when only eight years old, and later played Rugby with the champion Essendon club of the Victorian Football Association. After his graduation from Wisconsin, he did a bit of coaching in the middle west and finally moved to San Francisco. Nothing was ever heard of Pat O'Dea after 1914, and it is thought that he went overseas with some Anzac outfit and was killed or died in the war.

Feg Murray Says—

Very often a visiting football player feels that because he has successfully "taken out" his opponent during the afternoon's game, he can take out his opponent's girl in the evening.

Welch Elected Pitt Captain

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 10.—Supporters of the University of Pittsburgh football team today expressed hearty approval of the selection of Gilbert (Gibby) Welch, of Morgantown, W. Va., as captain of the Panthers for the 1927 season.

Welch, who was elected by his team-mates at the annual banquet of alumni and athletes of the school here last night, holds the national record for individual yardage gained during the past gridiron season.

Despite its name Graeco-Roman wrestling bears little resemblance to the style of wrestling in vogue among the ancient Greeks and Romans.

Thirty-five years ago the game of basketball was unknown. Now there are more than a million players in the United States and the game has spread to many other countries.

Andrews Defied Turns Into "Fightiest" Dry

Nation's Chief Prohibition Officer Determined To Win Battle; Has Become Ardent Believer In Volsteadism, According To Indications

By CHARLES P. STEWART.
Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The News.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 10.—General Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement shows strong signs of having become a genuine prohibitionist. When he accepted the dry czarship he made no pretense of sympathy with Volsteadism.

He admitted to always having been accustomed to drinking.

He simply undertook the job as a soldier obeying orders. Subsequently he had doubts whether success was possible in enforcing prohibition. It is unquestioned he repeatedly considered resigning.

He complained he found the position distasteful because it isolated him from the jolly society to which he was accustomed.

Change Observed.

Recently a change has marked his genral manner. He has ceased hinting at resignation. He has made several speeches defying law violators and promising to cut off their liquor yet.

Prohibition organizations which hitherto have eyed the general askance as not a dry in principle now are speaking well of him.

Apparently his prolonged battle has had a psychological effect in converting Andrews to real belief in what he is fighting for.

Butler's Experience.

General Smedley Butler had a similar experience. He went to Philadelphia as police director with no particular preference for prohibition enforcement. He had drunk moderately and never had been aligned with the drys. Later he found bootleggerdom his main opponent in his attempt to clean up Philadelphia. The fight narrowed to a duel between him and liquor and he wound up "bone dry."

General Andrews believes he has made considerable progress against smuggling and the diversion of government alcohol. But he is worrying now over the growth of the moonshining "industry."

He has aged during the contest and has lost most of his former geniality but apparently he is determined to hang on to wage further battle.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

That football has the right to challenge baseball for the title of "National game" is indicated by the fact, proved by the nation-wide poll conducted through this office that football not only has rabid followers in every nook and cranny of the country but that these same fans are closely in touch with the activities of the game and the outstanding players in every other section.

While having local interests their own favorite teams and favorite stars these grid fans keep in close touch with the situation generally just as the baseball bugs do. They are aided in the same way that the ball fans are, by the newspapers and the complete facilities these papers have for "covering" the various games in all sections of the country.

Baseball of course, extends over a period of six months of actual play whereas football lasts slightly over three months and it is only the last few years that the grid game has been carried past Thanksgiving day. The growing demand for post season intersectional games has lengthened the season some what.

The football fan who is interested only in the doing of his Alma Mater is in the minority. Football belongs to the public.

George Sisler, given the go-by as a "failure" as manager of the St. Louis Browns must get a kick out of the recent blase statement of Clark Griffith, head of the Washington club, that he (Griff) would make a trade "if I can get better players than I have now.'

Griffith and most other moguls go into the market for ball players with that idea. Griff figured that he was slipping one over on the Younger and inexperienced trader, Sisler, by offering him Catcher Hargraves and Pitcher Win Ballou for old Joe Bush. The latter was a fizzle for Griff and both the men he traded delivered for Sisler.

The recent victory of Mickey Walker in his battle with Tiger Flowers places Jack Kearns once more in the ranks of the select few managing ring champions.

Oddly enough Kearns managed Walker out of the welterweight title before piloting him into the middleweight throne.

Mickey's successful effort to win the world's middleweight title came after his first attempt had failed. He tackled Harry Greb some time before that gay old warrior's death and failed to outpoint the Pittsburgh windmill.

Just how much money Kearns will make for himself and Walker out of the middleweight crown remains to be seen. He had an awful job breaking though the crust with Walker while the jovial one was welterweighting.

Meanwhile we are inclined to wonder as to what Mr. Kearns' thoughts regarding the much discussed Dempsey-Tunney fight may be.

Kearns came out on a limb for Tunney before the battle. At that time most of the boys thought he was either simply talking through his hat because of his quarrel with Dempsey or was trying to "kid" the bettors.

United States Tennis Club To Have Meeting

Matter Of Professional Tennis Will Be Thrashed Out By Committee

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
Sports Editor Internat'al News Service

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Professional Tennis, the bugaboo of all gentlemen who parade behind the band wagon of the United States Lawn Tennis Association as a labor of love, probably will come in for a legislative broadside tomorrow when the association's executive committee will convene in all its annual displeasure over matters in general. Publicly, the committee is likely to treat the so-called professional menace with profound and depressing silence.

In this way, it will plainly indicate that a condition which divorced it from Mlle. Lenglen, Vincent Richards, Howard Kinsey, Mary Browne and others during a single season is beneath its notice. Then, under cover of the locked door and the plugged keyhole, it will prove its indifference by enacting such legislation as it thinks will cramp the style of those who would make lawn tennis a gainful occupation.

There was a division of opinion among the 300 delegates in attendance as to the advisability of complete mechanization of coal loading operations. The institute decided that where labor is scare mechanical loading is advisable.

Ormiston Is On Way To Chicago

Spends Night In Hotel In Pittsburgh—Going Along Voluntarily

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—Kenneth G. Ormiston, former Los Angeles radio operator, travelling as the voluntary "prisoner" of two Chicago detectives, was expected to reach this city today.

The former Angelus Temple radio announcer, under indictment in California in connection with the Aimee Semple McPherson case, was located Wednesday night in Harrisburg, Pa., by a Chicago newspaper reporter.

The discovery of Ormiston, living as "Fred Lininger" in a two-room bachelor suite overlooking the Susquehanna river, ended an exciting four months' search that had extended to every nation of the globe.

Following his "arrest", Ormiston voluntarily accompanied the reporter and detectives to the Penn-Harris hotel, where the party spent the night. Early yesterday they eluded a party of newspapermen who had gathered in the lobby of the hotel and started west by auto.

Ormiston and his "captors" made the trip from Harrisburg to Pittsburgh by automobile, arriving there last night. When they had been installed in a quiet suite at the Hotel Schenley, Ormiston became the target for a bombardment of questions concerning his movements since he left California.

He smilingly declined to give definite answers to all questions. His companions, at the end of the questioning, were quite willing to concede that the elusive radio announcer is exceedingly clever and sharp witted.

Need Three More Years To Rebuild Parts Of France

(International News Service)

PARIS, Dec. 10.—It is estimated that at least three years more will be required for the rebuilding of that part of France which suffered the most destruction during the war. This was in the Nord, Aisne, Pasde-Calais, Marne and Somme departments where the actual loss of a material kind is put at 38,000,000,000 francs and the total indemnity at nearly four times this amount. Altogether, 856,844 buildings were destroyed or damaged. Already, however, 521,913 have been permanently rebuilt, 42,000 temporary ones have been put up with old material. In face of these figures one can scarcely think that France is leaving her ruins untouched for the tourists to visit, although 108,901 wooden shacks put up during the war are still being used by people unable to find a better roof to shelter them.

Tie-Up Threatens Canada's Wheat Men With Severe Loss

WINNIPEG, Dec. 10.—A serious situation faces agriculturalists and dealers of the western provinces through the tieup of lake shipments, said a telegram today to the railway commissioners from the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association.

Fearing heavy loss if wet grain cannot be moved and dried within the next few months, the association requested immediate action, and suggested a public meeting of representatives of producers, grain trade and railway companies. It was suggested that space in interior and Government terminal elevators be reserved for handling damp grain.

Paris Statistics Reveal Marriage Aids Longevity

(International News Service)

PARIS, Dec. 10—Marriage is conducive to longevity, according to statistics recently published in a Paris daily. They show that during a given period of time, 28 out of every 100 single persons died about the age of 40 or 45. While, among those who had left the state of celibacy, the total number of deaths was only 18.

Other figures show that for every 80 married persons who reach the age of 42 there are only about 40 single ones who have the same good fortune.

Here's Town Run On $47 A Year

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Dec. 10. — With the national tendency toward increased municipal expenditures, the Wyoming State Board of Equalization holds out as an exception the town of Riverside. The entire expenditure this year for its maintenance and repair and fire and police protection, if any, will be $47.

Riverside is incorporated and has a mayor and everything—except a post office.

In 1911 anti-Prohibitionists got the legislature to pass a law providing that only incorporated town could have saloons. So now Wyoming, with a population of 206,381, according to the 1925 census, has seventy-four incorporated cities and towns, some of them with populations well under 100.

Pennsylvanians Suffer 27,530 Of War Casualties

By GEORGE H. MANNING
(Washington Correspondent of the News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 10.—Pennsylvania had 27,530 of its soldiers who served overseas in the World war who "got theirs" in the rough and ready parlance of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Completion of the task of rechecking and verifying the hundreds of thousands of records pertaining to battle casualties in the World war was announced by the Secretary of War in his annual report just submitted to the president. The records revealed that Pennsylvania boys who fought overseas suffered 28,788 casualties in the fighting that went on during America's participation in the war.

The excess of casualties among Pennsylvania soldiers over the number who suffered these casualties is accounted for by the large number of Pennsylvanians "got theirs" more than once. In the American Expeditionary Forces, there were 10,535 who were wounded twice, 436 were wounded three times, and 18 four times.

The number of Pennsylvania boys who were killed in action during the war was 4,305, and the number who died of wounds, 1,479, a total of 5,784 battle deaths for Pennsylvania's soldiery. There were 23,004 wounds which were not mortal suffered by soldiers from this state.

Primary purpose of the new line will be to haul redwood logs from California to the Mississippi mills, but on westward voyages the line will do a general freight hauling business.

Five vessels will maintain a 30-day schedule till June, after which a 12-day schedule will be put into effect.

Ports of call on the Pacific coast will be Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland and Seattle.

The Pittsburgh Field Trial club plans to enlarge its club grounds until it has a game sanctuary covering 10,000 acres.

Number Two of a Series

Cunningham RADIO TUBES

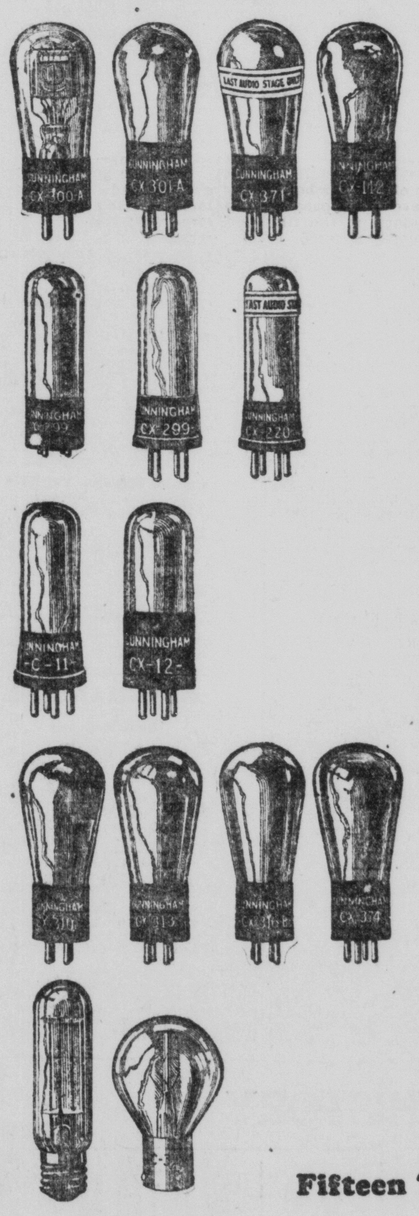
each one designed to perform efficiently a definite and particular task in your receiver.

The correct Cunningham Radio Tube in each socket of your set will greatly improve your radio enjoyment—will result in clearer and sweeter tone quality, improved sensitiveness and selectivity, greater volume and minimum distortion.

Study each type—acquaint yourself with its specific use and value. Then consult your nearest Cunningham radio dealer—he will gladly check over your tube equipment and make certain you have the correct combination of Cunningham Radio Tubes to enable your receiver to render its utmost in tone quality and realistic reproduction.



15 TYPES

CX-300A, CX-301-A and CX-371 or CX-112, all with 5 volt filaments, in correct combination, will bring your receiver to its point of highest efficiency. CX-301A is the ideal radio tube for general purpose work and will serve you well in any or all sockets of your set. However, especially in 5 and 6 tube tuned radio frequency or neutrodyne receivers the best tube equipment will include our new super-sensitive detector, CX-300A, and one power amplifier to feed the loud speaker—either CX-371 or CX-112, with CX-301A, in all the remaining sockets. CX-371 is the latest and most efficient power type, but CX-112 is more adaptable to certain circuits. Adding the new Cunningham detector and a Cunningham power amplifier to your receiver will improve tone quality, increase volume and eliminate distortion. Your set will then meet the highest modern standards for excellence in broadcast reception.

CX-220 in combination with C-299 or CX-299 is the ideal Cunningham equipment for dry battery operated sets. C-299 and CX-299 serve the same purposes in dry cell receivers that the CX-301A does in storage battery sets. They are both general purpose tubes, differing only in their bases. CX-299 has the new standardized CX base while C-299 has the old style base designed for the sockets of the earlier types of dry cell receivers. CX-220 is a power amplifier for dry cell work and used in the last audio frequency stage in combination with CX-299 or C-299 will improve the tone and operation of any loud speaker.

C-11 and CX-12 are also general purpose tubes for dry cell circuits and vary only in their bases. These two tubes are especially suited to sets wherein filament battery space must be held to a minimum. These tubes are not as highly efficient as C-299 and CX-299, and have no power tube to supplement them.

CX-310 is a heavy duty power amplifier designed to operate heavy duty loud speakers.

CX-313, CX-316B are rectifier tubes to be used in connection with socket power devices, including "B" eliminators. These tubes insure smooth set operation direct from the house lighting circuit.

CX-374 is a glow tube used to regulate output voltage of "B" eliminators.

C-376, Ballast Lamp, connected in series with the primary of the transformer supplying "B" battery eliminators, maintains output voltage constant despite variations in line voltages.

CX-377, Protective Tube, protects your other tubes from burnouts through wrong "B" battery connection or short circuits. It is a form of insurance.

Eleven years of concentrated effort on a single product has brought such uniform perfection that confidence in these tubes and in the name they bear is almost universal among radio enthusiasts. The vigilance that has won for Cunningham Radio Tubes such nation-wide confidence is not and shall not be relaxed. Our reputation is by far our most valuable asset.

THE POSSESSION OF THE LOWER MISSISSIPPI WAS OF GREAT MILITARY IMPORTANCE TO THE CONFEDERATES, AS IT CLOSED THE RIVER TO THE COMMERCE OF THE NORTH, WHILE MAKING EASY THE TRANSPORTATION OF MEN AND SUPPLIES FROM TEXAS. THE SECESSION OF LOUISIANA WAS FOLLOWED BY THE SEIZURE OF FEDERAL PROPERTY BY THE STATE GOVERNMENT.

Hostilities in Louisiana.

IN JANUARY, 1861, THE LOUISIANA AUTHORITIES TOOK POSSESSION OF THE U. S. ARSENAL AND BARRACKS AT BATON ROUGE AND THE FEDERAL CUSTOM HOUSE AND MINT AT NEW ORLEANS. FORT LIVINGSTONE WAS SEIZED BY THE SECESSIONISTS AND THE UNION GARRISON ON SHIP ISLAND ABANDONED THE FORTIFICATIONS THERE AFTER SPIKING THE GREAT GUNS AND BURNING GOVERNMENT STORES TO PREVENT THEIR CAPTURE BY THE STATE TROOPS.

THE BLOCKADE OF THE MISSISSIPPI HAD BEEN BEGUN BY THE FEDERAL WARSHIP "BROOKLYN" (MAY, 1861), AND LATER A SQUADRON WAS CONTINUALLY ON DUTY OFF THE MOUTHS OF THE RIVER. ON OCT. 4, THE UNION WAR STEAMER "SOUTH CAROLINA" CAPTURED TWO SCHOONERS CARRYING 4,000 STAND OF ARMS FOR THE CONFEDERATES.

N. Y. STOCKS

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Industrial and motor stocks moved forward confidently in the early trading today under the leadership of United States Steel, which exhibited an unusually firm tone for the period just prior to the publication of its monthly unfilled tonnage report. The low-priced motor shares, led by Hupp, Pierce Arrow and Dodge, sold higher, while the railroad "coalers" were active at Thursday's closing prices. With the exception of Mid-Continent, Oil stocks moved lower.

Call money renewals were posted at 4½ per cent.

Lehigh Valley moved up 2½ to a new high at 103⅝, while Atchison was boosted 2½ to 160 Atlantic Coast Line 2 and New York Central 2.

Buying of Mid-Continent Oil was based on reports that the doctors would soon restore the dividend on the common shares. Specialty stocks were under profit taking. Mercantile stocks continued to give a good account of themselves, with Montgomery Ward in the lead, Crucible Steel spurted to 81½ in anticipation of an early announcement regarding an extra cash dividend.

Barbers Hear Of Proposed State Licensing Bill

Meeting At Y. M. C. A. On Thursday Evening—Pittsburgh Barbers Speak

New Castle barbers had the proposed Barbers' Licensure Law explained to them Thursday evening when a meeting of all the tonsorial artists of the city was held in the Y. M. C. A.

President Sol Davis presided and in opening the meeting said that the purpose of it was to acquaint the men of the trade with the action that had been had on the bill thus far.

State Senator George T. Weingartner was the first speaker and said that he was for the protection of legitimate barbers and that he believed some such license law would be proper. While he did not declare himself for any bill which might be presented by the barber officials, he did pledge support to any measure such as the one proposed.

Bart Richards, representative-elect to the General Assembly was the second speaker and said that he believed that the honest barber should be protected against the inroads of the man who set up a shop, with no experience back of him. He also pledged his support to a protective bill.

Representatives of the Pittsburgh barbers were present and outlined the reasons for the drafting of the bill and said that every barber in the state would be asked to lend his influence towards the passage of the bill.

WARREN, Pa., Dec. 10.—Fear that a feud or vendetta among members of the foreign colony was responsible for the death of John Costagino, of Warren, was expressed here today as police sought mysterious assassin who, it was believed, made Costagino his second victim in two years.

Costagino's body was found with the skull crushed by an axe and a knife wound in the back, in the same locality under almost the same circumstances that the body of Joseph Wagner, Warren butcher, was discovered here two years ago.

In each instance the slayer vanished without leaving a single clew.

College Students Harbored Longing To See Santa Claus

Many At New Wilmington School Sought To Come—And Some Did

New Wilmington, the home of Westminster College, is only a stone's throw from New Castle. The distance seemed to be unexpectedly multiplied several times as the students passed to and from classes this morning for the majority of them had their thoughts on New Castle and its big event, the arrival and parade by Santa Claus and his friends from the far away north.

Especially was this true for the many New Castle students who are obtaining their higher learning at the United Presbyterian institution. They would dearly have loved to be in their home town this morning, to welcome the visitors and see the happiness shining from the faces of their little brothers and sisters.

However, the wheels of education could not be halted for the morning for Westminster students will soon begin their regular Christmas vacation with ample time to do their Christmas shopping and spreading of Yuletide gladness. Some did get away to New Castle, in spite of difficulties, and take part in the welcome.

And mind you, although many of the college co-eds were unable to greet good old Santa and his jolly companions from the distant land, their best wishes will continue with him in his travels over the world, and their empty stockings will be hanging at the fireside when they retire on Christmas eve, hoping sincerely that the grand old man will not forget them in his dispersing of those little somethings that make Christmas the finest holiday of the entire year.

Build Highway To Girdle Earth If In One Line

(Special To The News)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Highways nearly long enough to circle the earth have been constructed during 1925-1926 by the highways departments of the federal government and the several states. Approximately $463,000,000 is being spent for road work.

Between 30,000 and 40,000 miles of surfaced roads have been built each year since 1921. Under the federal aid act, the total cost of highways completed up to July 1, 1923, was $549,655,000, of which the federal government paid $237,852,000. These highways are 32,452 miles long.

Projects completed since July 1, 1924, cost $44,709,000, of which the federal government paid $21,291,000. The length of this section of highway is 2,643 miles.

Pittsburgh Bans Double Deck Bus

By HARRY BLOOMBARGH,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 10.—Those double-decker buses seen on the streets of London, New York, Philadelphia, Berlin and other metropolises are not for Pittsburgh, according to T. W. Noonan, general manager of a motor coach company here.

"This city is not built for those double-deckers," Noonan asserted. "They are slow-moving vehicles and must be fitted with solid tires, and on bumpy streets the effect is not so pleasant, and slow moving buses affect the entire bus system."

Everything "high-hat" on wheels is being discarded in Pittsburgh. The double-decker street cars will also be a thing of the past in a few months.

"Pittsburgh isn't built for two-decker vehicles" one traffic official asserted.

The latest style in "one-story buses and street cars" in Pittsburgh have low central doors that makes the steps about even with the curbstone.

"Customers are willing to climb, but not too high," the traffic officials concluded.

That Grand and Glorious Feeling, when you "give a Buick for Christmas."
